PENNSYLVANIA LANDSLIDE FOR ROOSEVELT

State Primaries Carried by the Colonel by Very Decisive Plurality.

WILSON DEFEATS CLARK

New Jersey Governor Democratic Choice for the Presidency.

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—At midnight it was certain that Theodore Roosevelt had captured Pennsylvania in today's State wide primaries.

Late returns indicate that the former President's lead in the country districts will be not less than three to one and two to one in the city of Philadelphia.

This result was indicated by the early returns and has been well sustained by later reports from every section of the State. He will probably have sixty-eight of the seventy-six delegates.

The Colonel is now reasonably sure of controlling the State convention. The Taft supporters concede defeat.

Roosevelt delegates have been chosen in every district where the Roosevelt leaders predicted victory, and in many districts which were conceded to Taft. A notable example is the example of the Thirteenth Ward of the First District of the city, always heretofore a Taft stronghold, the districted represented by the late Congressman Bingham.

Roosevelt Men Victors.

The Roosevelt forces have carried the ward by a safe margin. In the Sixth Congressional district, William Draper Lewis, dean of the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania, and Samuel Crothers, the Roosevelt delegate, have won over the Taft candidates by a majority estimated at 1,000. Dispatches to the Roosevelt headquarters from Pittsburg state that the Colonel's forces have carried he Smoky City by a majority of 30,000. In some districts in Western Pennsylvania this ratio of victory ran as high as ten to one.

"This is the end of the Taft campaign," was the jubilant announcement of Senator Dixon, Roosevelt's campaign manager, in commenting on the outcome of the primaries at midnight.

"Our advices show that we have swept the State. We have won every district except the First, Second and Third in Philadelphia and Fifteenth. Even those we do not at this hour concede that we have lost. We carried Pittsburg by more than 30,000. In several districts Roosevelt got a 10 to 1 vote over Taft."

Dixon's claim is sixty-four of the seventy-three district delegates.

Wilson Defeats Clark.

Woodrow Wilson has gained a complete victory over Champ Clark in the Democratic primaries. He was on both the Regular and Independent Democratic tickets, while Clark had to depend chiefly upon irregular ballots. Wilson's managers state that he will have at least four-fifth of the delegates to the Baltimore convention, and probably the entire seven delegates.

Lancaster and Dauphin Counties gave Roosevelt a heavy majority. In the Bucks-Montgomery District, the Taft delegates are beaten by at least 2 to 1.

Senators Penrose and Oliver and Governor Tener, who were slated for delegates-at-large for Taft, cannot now even sit in the National Convention.

DELAWARE PRIMARY RETURNS GIVE TAFT BIG LEAD IN STATE

WILMINGTON, Del., April 13.—The result of the Republican primary election in this State today for the election of delegates to the State convention Tuesday is a victory for Taft, although the Delaware delegation will go to the National convention uninstructed.

Taft Sure of Iowa.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 13.—With every county definitely decided tonight, it is practically certain that President Taft will control the Iowa convention April 24, with a vote of 26 delegates. The last doubtful county was decided this afternoon, when Muscatine County selected Cummins delegates in violation of a previous agreement to divide with Taft.

Connecticut for Clark.

PLAINFIELD, Ct., April 13.—The Democrats have now elected 170 out of 205 delegates in this, the new Second Congressional district, which comprises the eastern half of the State. Sentiment overwhelmingly favors Clark, excepting four delegates from an obscure section of this county who are noncommittal. The primaries will be held April 30.

S. O. S! the North Pole is Drifting!

Seen Off the Newfoundland Coast by the Mariner Who Brings the News.

Captain George W. Filler, who came in yesterday on the bridge of the Hamburg-American freighter Bulgaria, straight away from Hamburg—where the edging comes from—brought with him the astounding news that the North Pole has not only broken away but is drifting off towards Germany at the rate of forty-four knots an hour.

When Captain Filler saw the subject of the Cook-Peary controversy it was twelve points off the coast of Newfoundland. "I had read everything ever written by Dr. Cook," dey Captain said, "and I'd have known it anywhere.

"I ran into the Pole off the coast of Newfoundland on the morning of the ninth. We had to break through ten miles of ice floe, with a few small bergs. By a wide detour we managed to escape the tremendous field of small bergs and floe ice with an occasional immense berg in the middle. Two of them were at least 300 feet high and a quarter of a mile long."

At the Hamburg-American offices they said that Captain Filler was named after the great American who figured in the incident of popa and the cherry tree.

POCKET MONEY FOR JOE.

Mr. Sceziour of Brockton Hears of Some Chicken Feed.

BROCKTON, April 14.—Joseph Sceziour, a local contractor, is one of the heirs to a fortune of $230,000,000 left by Richard Churchill of England. Twenty-two people are to share in this estate. The share that it said to be due to Sceziour amounts to $10,500,000.

Of this estate $90,000,000 is in St. John, New Brunswick. The fortune was left to members of the Rolan family, of which Sceziour's mother was a member.

When asked for his future plans when the share of the estate due him will be paid over, he said, "I will buy a farm and will fit it up in first-class style. Then I will put the rest of the money in trust for my wife and child. I will have the fortune fixed so that when my daughter marries her husband cannot dissipate it."

BRYAN AFTER HARMON.

Will Hurry Out to Ohio and Reply to Governor's Attacks.

NEW YORK, April 13.—William J. Bryan had scarcely entered the suite assigned him on his arrival at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight when he declared his intention of getting out to Ohio with all speed to enter the fight against Governor Harmon.

"I notice Governor Harmon made a speech out in your State yesterday in which he gave you some side swipes," said a reporter.

"I understand he did," replied Mr. Bryan. "I haven't had time yet to read the Harmon speech carefully, but I shall do so before going to sleep tonight. I am leaving here Monday for the Governor's State for a speaking tour; a sort of return compliment, you might say."

"I'M OUT OF IT"—FOSS.

Governor Says Stick to Tariff and Reciprocity Issue.

Over and over again, at the dinner of the Democratic Club of Massachusetts last night in the City Club, Governor Foss told the boys that he is "out of the fight this year."

Frank Donahue started it by introducing the Governor as "the next President of the United States." (Applause.) Judge Riley said more to the same effect. Congressman Curley spoke with some show of positiveness of Foss for vice-president. The dinner was excellent.

Governor Foss expressed the belief that the issue this fall will be tariff revision and reciprocity. "If we make that the dominant issue," Mr. Foss said, "and will not be turned aside from it, we shall surely win."

HER 102ND BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Moore of Brimfield, Physicians Say, May Live Long Time.

Mrs. Laura Griggs Moore of Brimfield, celebrated her one hundred and second birthday yesterday. Although confined to her bed by reason of a shock, she has retained many of her faculties and, according to her physicians, she may live some time yet. She was born in Union, Ct., and was the daughter of Elisha and Sarah (Booth) Griggs.

MAYOR TO MR. REDMOND.

Mayor Fitzgerald yesterday cabled the Honorable John Redmond, M. P., at the House of Commons, London, his approval of the "Home Rule" bill.

The cablegram read:

"America approves Home Rule bill. Ireland self-governed means happy and prosperous."

GET "BIG BILL'S" FRIEND, "BIG LEM"

Strausneider, Who Helped to Fleece Young Coleman, Nabbed in Virginia.

NOT THE BANK CASE, THIS

Atlantic Avenue Merchant, Who Lost $7,500 to 'Wire-Tappers,' Identifies a Photograph.

James Strausneider, known to the police and the underworld as "Big Lem," and said to have been associated with "Big Bill" Kellner and the late Martin Walsh in the fleecing of George Coleman of the First National Bank of Cambridge, was arrested last night at Petersburg, Va.

While later there may turn out to be something still due "Big Lem" in connection with the case of young Coleman, the present charge against him is made by the Chicago police. When they are through with him, Deputy Watts said this morning, Strausneider may be brought here for the trimming of Samuel Butter, a local merchant at No. 508 Atlantic avenue, in a wire tapping game which began in Boston last year and ended in Providence.

Butter, who then resided at No. 23 Waban street in Roxbury, complained to the Boston police that he had been taken in for $7,500. He named a William C. Crane, a Kane, and a Sterling, "manager of the Electric Welding Company of Lynn." Sterling, according to all accounts, was "Big Lem" Strausneider, one of the slickest con men in the United States. Butter was introduced to Sterling, a big, handsome man of 42, at the Hotel Somerset.

Find Fake Wires.

In a house in Snow street, Providence, to which Butter later led the police, a complete equipment for the fake "wire-tapping" game was found, bogus telephones and phoney telegraph instruments, racing charts, and telegrams describing the conditions of various running tracks.

Crane was arrested at the time. Kane and Sterling got away. It was Crane who explained that the bargaining for copper led to "wire tapping."

During the Coleman-Kellner-Walsh excitement, "Big Lem" was run in by Federal officers in Brooklyn. He beat the extradition proceedings and disappeared. Boston heard no more of him—that was in the May of 1910—until in July, 1911, Mr. Butter of Atlantic avenue complained that he had been trimmed for $7,500.

Arrested in Virginia.

Strausneider, say dispatches to the AMERICAN from Petersburg, Va., was arrested last night by Chief of Police Ragland and Detectives Heelan and Eanes at the Chesterfield Hotel, where he had been stopping since April 4th under the name of "J. Sothern."

William H. Stoddack of the Pinkerton's arrived in Petersburg yesterday. Strausneider was in his room and at first exhibited some fear. He recovered his nerve immediately and would have nothing to say. Chief Ragland wired Chicago and received a reply to hold Strausneider as he was under indictment. An officer with papers will be sent for him as soon as possible. Strausneider secured counsel, with a view of a motion for delay, but on finding that the Commonwealth would strenuously oppose he did not make any.

In Petersburg Strausneider posed as a broker. He kept close to the hotel. Strausneider is a fine looking man, over six feet in height and apparently about forty-five years old.

PAYS TO KEEP CLEAN.

Dust Up Oxford's Town Hall and Find Something Valuable.

OXFORD, April 13.—While cleaning the nooks and corners of Memorial Hall today, so that the place would be presentable for the exercises to be held Monday, attending the funeral of the late Clara Barton, Orn B. Chaffee, the janitor, found a dust-laden package which proved to be the town records of 1704. They were turned over to the town clerk, who said he never knew such records existed.

CAUGHT BETWEEN AUTOS.

Mrs. I. L. Brackett of Brookline Falls and Sustains Bruises.

Mrs. I. Lewis Brackett of No. 50 Pleasant street, Brookline, was caught between two automobiles at Coolidge Corner last evening. Salvatore A. Purposa, a chauffeur, pushed her out of the way of both cars so that she was not struck, but she was stunned by falling heavily to the ground. She was taken to her home in an automobile. She sustained several bruises.

Dr. Hallowell of Quincy Dead.

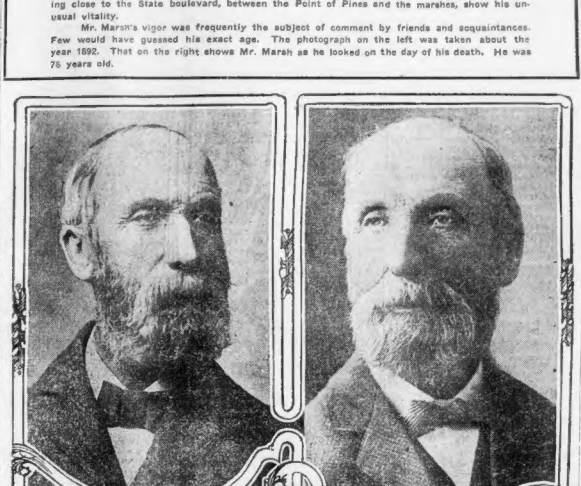
Dr. Henry C. Hallowell, city physician of Quincy, died shortly before midnight last night at his home, No. 1244 Hancock street, Quincy, after a lingering illness. Dr. Hallowell was born in Bangor, Me., November 12, 1847, and has lived in Quincy for the past thirteen years.

George E. Marsh, a Man of Remarkable Vigor, as Shown by These Photographs Taken Twenty Years Apart

WHICH IS WHICH?

Photographs of Lynn's wealthy retired manufacturer, whose body was found Friday morning close to the State boulevard, between the Point of Pines and the marshes, show his unusual vitality.

Mr. Marsh's vigor was frequently the subject of comment by friends and acquaintances. Few would have guessed his exact age. The photograph on the left was taken about the year 1892. That on the right shows Mr. Marsh as he looked on the day of his death. He was 76 years old.



TAKE THE GAGS OFF WOMEN AT SHERBORN

Solitary Confinement Has Been Punishment of Women Prisoners Who Talked.

The Legislative Committee on Prisons, because of certain conditions found to exist in the Sherborn Prison for Women, has ordered drastic changes in the rules governing the treatment of women prisoners there, it was learned last night.

The committe found, according to several of its members who were seen yesterday, that the women held at the Sherborn prison are treated worse than the criminals incarcerated in the Charlestown prison. One of the rules existing in the institution, which especially aroused the committee, it is declared, prohibited the women prisoners from conversing with each other except on holidays, and then for no more than a half an hour. A violation of this rule is punishable by solitary confinement.

Order Rule Modified.

As a result of the discovery of these conditions made by the committee during its recent inspection of the Sherborn prison, it has filed a "recommendation" that this rule be changed so as to allow the prisoners to converse for half an hour each day except Saturday, when they shall be permitted to converse for two hours.

It is understood that Representative Martin L. Quinn of Swampscott, the member of the Committee on Prisons who filed the recommendation with Chairman Pettigrove, told him that unless the recommendation was complied with a resolve would be introduced in the Legislature to provide for a legislative investigation of the treatment of prisoners at Sherborn and that a communication would be sent to Governor Foss to secure an executive investigation as well.

Representative Quinn, it is known, made this demand upon Prison Commissioner Pettigrove, after he had been authorized by practically the whole Committee on Prisons to do so.

Quinn Offered Resolve.

Representative Quinn is the man who introduced the resolve in last year's Legislature for an investigation of the care and treatment accorded patients in the State correctional institutions and hospitals and in private sanitariums and hospitals, which resulted in the passage of drastic legislation.

Senator Charles F. McCarthy of Marlboro also played a prominent part in the investigation made by the Committee on Prisons of the treatment accorded prisoners at Sherborn.

The officials in charge of the Sherborn Reformatory are: Superintendent, Mrs. Jessie D. Hodder; deputy superintendent, Mrs. Lizzie O. Averill. The physician is Frances W. Potter and the chaplain Emily L. Herndon.

Laugh at This, or Call the Doctor!

Brother Henry W. (Taft) Complains That T. R. Has a Bbl.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Henry W. Taft, a brother of the President, told a reporter today that he had been informed that nearly a million dollars thus far has been spent in the promotion of Colonel Roosevelt's candidacy for the nomination against President Taft.

Henry W. Taft is a leading member of the New York bar and prepared the case of the government's dissolution suit against the Tobacco Trust.

"Illies (meaning the secretary to the President) and others who have made it their business to watch the development of the Roosevelt campaign and the source and amount of the Roosevelt campaign fund told me a few days ago," said Mr. Taft, "that thus far seven hundred thousand dollars has been spent. Timothy L. Woodruff told me last night that a day or two ago William Flinn of Pittsburg, one of the Roosevelt leaders in Pennsylvania, had told him that he (Flinn) had spent two hundred and fifty thousand dollars in that State for Colonel Roosevelt."

MORGAN ALMOST MOBBED.

Crowd in Rome Thought He Was Smuggling an Old Masterpiece.

ROME, April 13.—J. Pierpont Morgan experienced the most exciting episode of his present trip abroad, late today, when he departed for Paris. Their suspicions aroused earlier in the day, several hundred persons believing that the financier intended to smuggle out an old master, thronged the station and when Mr. Morgan and his party appeared, the efforts of the police were asked to prevent the mob doing violence.

Mr. Morgan was greatly agitated, and dashed quickly to his car as soon as his carriage stopped. All the exits of the car were immediately closed and blinds lowered.

LIE PASSED IN HOUSE.

Sharp Clash at Washington Between Graham and Mann.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The lie was passed on the floor of the House today when Representative Graham of Illinois, chairman of the Committee on Interior Department Expenditures, branded as "absolutely and unqualifiedly false" the statement made yesterday by Mr. Mann, the minority leader, that Mr. Graham had told Mrs. Helen Pierce Gray, termed a woman lobbyist, not to return a fee protested by an Indian client. The ensuing debate was intense and bitter. Mr. Mann finally demanded that Mr. Graham explain the connection of Mrs. Gray with the committee, or that the committee should be made the subject of investigation.

JOHN D. GIVES $500.

Contributes to the American Olympic Fund.

NEW YORK, April 13.—John D. Rockefeller has contributed $500 to the fund to defray the expenses of the American athletes to the Olympic games to be held in Stockholm, in July.

TAKES JAIL TERM FOR ANNOYING GIRL

Dean of South Weymouth Prefers Prison to Paying $50 Fine for Breaking Probation.

The case of Marshall A. Dean of South Weymouth, the Tech. graduate and structural engineer, whose infatuation for Miss Ruth Alvord, the pretty daughter of the Rev. Henry C. Alvord of the same town led to Dean being brought into court last Wednesday for annoying the girl, took a more sensational turn yesterday when Dean chose to go to Dedham Jail for three months rather than pay a $50 fine for breaking his probation and bothering Miss Alvord.

The case has stirred the Weymouth and Quincy sections tremendously. Miss Alvord has a leading social position in the Weymouths. She is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College. She is active in the affairs of the Old South Congregational Church at South Weymouth, of which her father is pastor; that is, when she is at home. She holds a position as teacher in the public schools of New Britain, Ct.

Last Wednesday Dean was in Quincy District Court on a charge of disturbing the peace. The complainant was the Rev. Henry C. Alvord, father of the girl whom Dean seeks to woo.

The Quincy police said that Dean had obtruded himself on the Alvord family and Max Storm, Miss Alvord's fiance. Easter Sunday night at the church, and that he had previously persisted in writing to and calling on Miss Alvord.

Dean was fined $50, but the sentence was suspended. Dean was put on six months' probation and was warned to let Miss Alvord alone.

Thursday afternoon Miss Alvord telephoned her father on the long-distance from New Britain, Ct., that Dean had come to that city and had called at her boarding house at 4 o'clock in the morning. The girl appealed to her father for protection.

The disturbance warrant against Dean was released and South Weymouth and Quincy police were instructed to watch for him. They sought him Friday and Friday night to no effect. Yesterday noon, just as Quincy court was closing, Dean walked into the office of Probation Officer Hultman in the courthouse.

Hultman took Dean to Judge Avery's private office. Two physicians were summoned, who observed Dean while he was in the Judge's office. Judge Avery revoked the probation and enforced the suspended fine of $50.

Judge Avery wasted no time in argument but ordered Dean committed to the Norfolk county jail at Dedham for three months in default of payment of the fine.

ARREST TO BE MADE IN MARSH MURDER

Lynn Police Chief Says That Evidence Has Been Discovered That Warrants Taking Suspect Into Custody Today

Rewards Aggregating $2,000 Offered by the American, the Mayor of Lynn and Relatives for Apprehension of Slayer

CHIEF Burckes of the Lynn police, after a conference with detectives at Lynn headquarters shortly after midnight, announced early today that he expected to make an arrest in the case of the murder of George E. Marsh, the rich soap manufacturer, either this afternoon or tomorrow.

Chief Burckes said that the man under suspicion had been very intimate with the murder victim, whose bullet-ridden body was discovered in the West Lynn marshes on Friday.

"We will have evidence enough in a few hours, I think, to warrant an arrest," declared the chief. "The man has been located by one of the inspectors working on the case."

The police declare that under the theory on which they have been working, the motive for the crime was in certain financial dealings the dead man had made.

Roy Olson, twenty, living at No. 10 Amity street, Lynn Beach, told the police last night that he had seen an automobile travelling at a high rate of speed in the direction of the Lynn Boulevard Thursday night. Olson said there was a man sitting in the rear seat, holding a human form in his arms.

Thought It Form of Woman.

In the darkness Olson said he took the form to be that of a woman. The police believed it was really the body of Marsh and that the auto was then on its way to the point at which the body of the murdered man was deposited in the West Lynn marshes.

Rewards amounting to $2,000 were offered yesterday for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who murdered Marsh. Of this sum $1,000 is offered by the Boston AMERICAN for positive and conclusive information leading to the solution of the crime, the other $1,000 being offered by the City of Lynn and relatives.

After going over the ground carefully, the detectives yesterday ran across an incident in the victim's recent life that caused them to make a search for a man with whom Mr. Marsh had had legal trouble.

At the house where the man lived it was declared he disappeared last October and had not been seen since. He is about forty years old and married. So far as could be learned no one had seen this man in Lynn since he left following his legal trouble with Marsh, his landlord.

Seldom have detectives of New England been called on to trace a criminal who worked with as great cleverness as the man who shot the old manufacturer. This, in brief, was the situation:

Wish to See Man in Suit.

The detectives wish to talk to this man in line with the process of elimination that they have followed in their attempt to clear up the tragedy. So far as could be learned yesterday and last night nothing had been found that connected him with the case.

The man for whom the search was made formerly was employed in Lynn. A suit was started against him by Mr. Marsh. The man disappeared. He is reported to have said:

"I'll not pay the money. I do not owe it. I have been cheated unfairly."

Marsh, seventy-six years old, but in good health, was about Lynn as usual Thursday afternoon. He was prepared to go to California next week, where his only son, James, was at the time. He was near his home, apparently going to supper, shortly after 5 o'clock that evening. That was the last positive trace of him given. The body of the man was found the next morning about two miles from his home.

The aged man had been murdered, it was figured, about 7 o'clock on Thursday evening. The medical examiner was able to make this deduction. His had been only four times. Two bullets pierced his heart. They struck less than an inch apart. The other two were lower in the body, also very close together.

AT WORK ON BAFFLING MARSH MURDER CASE

Any one of the four shots would have eventually killed the man. But he probably died instantly after the first shot that cut through his heart.

The man was fully clothed when he was killed. His overcoat was buttoned up. He may have been sitting in a chair or standing. But the shots came from in front and must have been fired by some one Marsh knew—even trusted.

No Chance for His Life.

The aged man did not have a second's chance for his life. In all probability he never had a hint of his impending fate until that fraction of a moment when he saw in a distant blur the flash of the revolver fired weapon.

When the body was found it was believed it was a simple case of desperate robbery. But when the man's money was discovered with his watch in his pocket and a ring on his finger, the robbery idea was abandoned for the theory of a motive.

Revenge must have inspired the attack on the old man. Hate that only certain death would satisfy lurked in the heart of the man or woman who held the revolver.

One shot, although it sped into the victim's heart and passed through the body, was not enough. Again, again, and yet again the finger pulled the trigger of the weapon, three bullets leaping into the body of the man already doomed.

Who could have so hated this gray-bearded man, whose span of life was so near run, to have thus shot him down in cold blood in one of the most pitiless murders that ever took place in Massachusetts?

Not an Enemy in World.

So far as the police could learn, when they first began to delve into the mysterious case, the man did not have an enemy in the world. The people who knew him in Lynn could not think of anyone who would commit the crime.

But the crime was committed, and the detectives rekindled their efforts. Back over the trail of the old man's life they went, groping for something that would shed light on the tragedy.

One conclusion soon was reached and about which there does not appear to be any doubt, is that the man was murdered in Lynn—probably not far from his home—and that his body was whirled in an automobile to the place where it was found.

The body was carefully lifted from the machine and carried to the spot over the fence where it was found. Marsh weighed almost 200 pounds. The body had never been dragged. It would take a strong man to carry the body, or more than one man.

Some of the detectives thought Marsh had been shot by a woman. About the only reason that could be found for this theory was that they thought a man would not shoot so many times—that several deadly shots were more characteristic of a woman than of a man.

The Woman Theory.

It was suggested in this connection that the man might have been taken out in an automobile by a woman friend and killed. But it was difficult to see how a woman could have got the body from an automobile and through the fence to where it was found.

The police talked to two women who were old friends of Marsh as to whether they had seen him on Thursday. They were utterly unable to throw any light on the crime. It was generally agreed by those working on the case that money must have been at the bottom of the crime. The wealth of the aged man was estimated as reaching $500,000 or more. Two questions were asked by the police in connection with this feature:

"Had Marsh made a will and disappointed someone?"

"Had he declined to make a will and provide for some one?"

The attorneys who had been doing the aged man's business knew nothing about the matter. Again, again, and yet again the finger pulled the trigger of the weapon, three bullets leaping into the body of the man already doomed.

Shock to Sister.

When the older of the maids learned on Friday that the employer of whom she adored, she feared to disclose the startling news lest it might be a fatal shock to the old woman. So Miss Hannah Marsh was induced to visit a relative and remain over Friday. She had been told that her brother had been slightly hurt in an automobile accident and would remain at the hospital over night.

When the sister returned some yesterday morning, she found the police at the house going through the effects and research of a will. She realized that something of a most serious nature had happened.

"What is the matter, tell me," she asked.

"We thought your brother might have left a will," she was told.

"Then he's dead!"

"Yes."

"He was killed in an automobile accident?"

"No, he was murdered."

It was a few moments almost prostrated the sister, but she stood it well for one of her age. She did all that she could to help the detectives in giving them information which might lead to the clue they could find so well among Marsh's effects.

Will Theory Exploded.

The fact that Marsh had made no will eliminated the theory that he had been killed by some one who had been unremembered. Then came the question as to whether he had been cajoled to make a will in favor of some one, but nothing could be found that would bear out the theory. And they could find no will among Marsh's effects.

Then came the question as to whether he had been cajoled to make a will in favor of some one, but nothing could be found that would bear out the theory. And they could find no will among Marsh's effects.

The police feel reasonably assured that Marsh was shot when sitting down, because the nature of his wounds. Holes in his overcoat show he wore the garment when killed. The fact that there was no powder stains on the coat indicates that the shots were fired from a distance greater than six feet.

Therefore, the police think, it could not have been fired when the slain man was not abandoned the idea some one wanted money from Marsh before he went away; that he refused to pay it and that his life was the forfeit.

It was found Marsh had dropped $5,000 in the North American Rubber Company smash, in which many reputable Boston business men were caught. He had been in Boston three or four days expecting to testify before the Grand Jury in connection with the case, and was in Boston on Wednesday, the day before he was murdered, to go before the Grand Jury.

Marsh complained of a headache on Wednesday and asked that he might be excused before the Grand Jury. Post Office Inspector Hurley took down a statement from him as to what he would be able to testify to, but it was said there was nothing outside of the fact he had bought stock that was worthless. In other words there was not enough in the testimony to give grounds for an assumption Marsh might have been murdered to seal his lips as to what he knew.

The Crime Reconstructed.

After weighing the evidence from all standpoints the police yesterday reached the conclusion the murder of the rich man happened in about the following manner:

Marsh, the police believe, was accosted by some person to whom he had had no reason to fear, just before he reached his home late Thursday afternoon.

The person or persons induced the soap man to accompany them to a house, either in the immediate vicinity of the Marsh home, or in a more distant part of the city. They could not have gone far as, according to Medical Examiner Pinkham, the slain man was slain not later than o'clock Thursday night.

Marsh went to some building, probably to a house where he had been before, and left his automobile. He sat down there, still keeping on his overcoat, and expecting to stay for a few minutes. The police believe the dead man was brought to the house to receive some promised package, parcel or paper.

The chair in which Marsh was invited to sit down faced either a door or some opening in the wall, or an adjoining room. This room may have been dark, and its inmate hostile to the slain man.

The person in this room took deadly aim and fired the fatal shot. Marsh was dead instantly.

Shortly later, when opportunity offered, the body was taken to the lonely spot, and abandoned.

SCENE AND FIGURES IN SEARCH FOR SLAYER

The building is the Marsh rendering plant in West Lynn. It was suggested at first the victim might have been on his way from a late visit to the plant when shot. riding in the rear seat of an automobile, his assailant sitting in front.

One of the women who had been questioned by the police in connection with the case to see if she might have known anything of the murdered man's movements on the day he was killed, called at the Lynn police station yesterday and complained that as a result of the police inquiry she had been shunned by many of her neighbors who had made threatening remarks about her. The woman said she had known Marsh for several years, but that she had not seen him for some time prior to his death.

Caleb W. Marsh, brother of the murdered man and two years his junior, was asked if he had any theories about the murder. The brother said he had no idea who could have been impelled to commit the deed.

Caleb Marsh lives at No. 243 Chestnut street, Lynn, in the Winter. The house is not far from the soap factory of which the murdered man was the head. In the Summer Caleb Marsh, with his wife and son, Arthur, live at their Summer place, No. 61 Humphreys street, Swampscott. Arthur Marsh is superintendent of the soap factory.

Caleb Marsh and his family have been at the Summer home in Swampscott for a week. He or they came over to-day to get household goods, riding over in Caleb Marsh's automobile, a red, five-seated touring car. Caleb W. Marsh was seen at his Lynn home, just as he was preparing to leave the house. He said:

"The last time I saw my brother was at 3 o'clock Wednesday. I do not know of any enemies my brother had, or any business troubles to cause enmity."

Didn't Often Call.

He was told of the statement by Oscar Fitzallen, the Chatham street barber, who says he saw the murdered man going toward home at 4:30 Thursday afternoon. Mr. Marsh was asked:

"If your brother was seen going toward home at 4:30 and coming from the direction of home at 5 o'clock, and still had not been home during that time, where did he go in the neighborhood, do you suppose? Would there be some neighbor's house he would call at for a while? Is there any one around there he was in the habit of dropping in on for an afternoon visit like that?"

"No," replied Mr. Marsh, "not that I am aware. In fact, I am sure there is none that my brother would have called on in that way. But you know his movements have not been definitely traced. Various people have been quoted as saying they saw him. But no one spoke to him near his home that afternoon that I have seen."

In this the brother is correct, so far as has been learned. There have been persons who are sure they saw Marsh Thursday afternoon between 4 and 6, after he left the central part of the city, but no one has reported speaking to him.

Caleb W. Marsh was asked if the murdered man owned a revolver.

"I don't know positively," he replied, "but I do not think he had that. I never heard a shot from a revolver or any other weapon for years—not since he was in the war, myself."

"Will you engage private detectives in case no good clew develops soon?"

"Why, I don't know," he answered, "that is in the future. Then there are others to have some say about that, my son Arthur and one or two men at the soap factory. But I am not sure but what they are going to do or have done something in the way of getting detectives."

Before the interview was ended Caleb W. Marsh and his wife started from the house by the front door, walked around the house toward the garage and got ready to depart.

Just then Arthur Marsh, their son, whirled up in his auto, a two-seated roadster with a movable rumble. Arthur Marsh is about forty-five years old, active and energetic. He was apparently not inclined to discuss the case.

First as he was approached a woman called from the house, "Arthur, hurry up." Arthur Marsh, the lawyer, heard the call and could not stop to talk of the crime. The body of the murdered man buried deep into the house.

NEW FLOOD DRIVES 50,000 FROM HOMES

Torrents of Water Pour Through Three Breaks in Mississippi River.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 13.—Three breaks in the Mississippi River levee, where for forty-eight hours a thousand men have been laboring to hold back the torrent which allowed the flood waters to sweep over Southern Arkansas and Northern Louisiana, today inundated a vast stretch of country and rendered 50,000 persons homeless. The breaks occurred at Panther Forest, Ark., Lake Village, Ark., and Salem, L. I.

Although the flood swept out over the low lands, it failed to relieve the situation here and at Helena, Ark., and the sugar country is still in danger of a flood crest that causes untold loss and imperils lives. Lake Village, a town of 3,000 inhabitants, was soon the centre of a swirling torrent when the break occurred. Some of its houses already having been washed from their foundations and sent whirling down the Mississippi.

The breaks will flood the entire Tennessee bands, including the richest farming land in the southern Mississippi river valley. Desha County and Chicot County, Ark., as far south as the mouth of the Red River and for miles back from the old river course, the country will be under water by tonight, it was asserted by government levee experts here.

BALLOON FALLS TO EARTH.

Fourteen Passengers in Dirigible Narrowly Escape Death.

SCHETTINGEN, Germany, April 13.—Fourteen passengers narrowly escaped death today when the Schuette-Lanz dirigible balloon in its first flight of the year plunged to the earth from a height of three hundred feet. The accident was caused by the breaking of the vertical steering gear. The six inmates of the gondola, together with Professor Schuette and mechanic, were thrown out with great violence. The mechanic was badly crushed.

FIGHTING FREE SUGAR.

Louisiana Business Men and Newspapers Join in Campaign.

NEW ORLEANS, April 13.—Louisiana, the most rock-ribbed Democratic State of the South, threatens to go Republican this Fall. This is the threat of newspapers, business men and planters, as the revenge of the State upon Democracy, if the Democratic party succeeds in its efforts to put sugar on the free list. The campaign against free sugar is now in full swing on the chain letter basis.

SHOT BY MEXICAN REBELS.

Death of American Engineer Employed on Railroad.

MONTEREY, Mex., April 13.—Charles Farmer, formerly a resident of Moberly, was shot and killed by the rebels, near Tranquilla, Wednesday, according to a message received by his sister, Mrs. W. W. Jackson, Jr. Farmer was an engineer employed on a Mexican railroad.

The Hollis Burgess Yacht Agency has sold the forty-foot motor boat Messina, owned by Commodore James J. Hill of the Savin Hill Yacht Club, to George R. Merrill of Portland, Me., and the fast power boat Kid, owned by Commodore H. W. Clark of the Philadelphia Corinthian Yacht Club, to Ernest W. Dutton of Brookline.

THREATEN CASHIER WHO WRECKED BANK

Angry Depositors Gather at New Berlin Institution to Get Pass Books.

NORWICH, N. Y., April 13.—Angry depositors of the wrecked First National Bank at New Berlin threatened violence today when the doors of the institution were opened for the first time by the Federal examiners to receive pass books and deposit slips.

Feeling against Frank T. Arnold, the cashier who has confessed to having stolen more than $200,000 of the bank's funds, became intense today when it was reported that two slight gaps in vast quantity of silverware was secretly taken from his home and as secretly shipped to Buffalo.

The suspension of the bank has paralyzed business in this vicinity and the effect is even more widespread than was supposed yesterday. Between twenty and thirty towns in Chenango county had their deposits in the First National Bank at New Berlin. These are tied up and the towns cannot secure funds. Two hundred school districts are affected, and the teachers from here will be without pay.

Hundreds of fraternal organizations are also affected and are unable to pay sick or death benefits.

No Need Being Old or Wrinkled Before 75

Lillian Russell says any woman who has wrinkles before she's 75 is herself responsible for them. Sunshine and fresh air she considers more valuable as complexion preservers than nostrums and cosmetics.

The chief objection to cosmetics is that at best they only temporarily cover up defects. There are certain true aids to Nature which may be applied with discernible effect. Ordinary mercolized wax, for instance, actually removes a bad or oldish complexion, by gradually, almost imperceptibly, peeling off the worn-out scarf skin. Just one ounce, procurable at any drug store, will overall any faulty, muddy, sallow complexion, with an exquisite girlish color. Or powder removal of freckles, liver spots, pimples, blackheads, moth patches, liver spots, disappear with the application of this.

To prevent or remove wrinkles, there is nothing like pure, natural results is made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. It's wonderfully effective.

His Landlady's Advice Probably Saved His Life

I feel that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root saved my life. I inherited weak kidneys. The discharge was so frequent and painful that I would have to stay in bed to obtain temporary relief. I consulted good physicians but the results were disappointing. My landlady advised me to try Swamp-Root as the last resort, which I did and I was quickly relieved.

I continued taking Swamp-Root and my weight has increased fifty pounds. My health is of the best and I have told many others about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and have done a lot of good in this way. Your wonderful medicine is of great value to mankind.

Yours very truly,

NATION-WIDE HUNT FOR MRS. GRACIE

She Must Tell Court Story of Being Barred From Cap-itol "400."

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The United States government today assumed charge of a nation-wide search for Mrs. Archibald Gracie, leader of New York and Washington society. However much against her will, this beautiful and fashionable woman will be brought to the United States Court in Washington to tell whether or not, as is stated under oath, she informed Mrs. Harley Colvin Gage that Senator Charles J. Bell, brother of the telephone inventor, had determined to bar her and her handsome daughter, Margaret, from the capital "400."

A crisis in the remarkable case, which has now assumed a national guise, was reached today when, after a thorough search, the authorities were unable to locate Mrs. Gracie in Washington. As the courts in the District of Columbia are vested with government authority, the entire federal force is at their command.

With the information that the missing witness fled to New York immediately following the testimony by Miss Gage, two United States marshals, armed with new subpoenas, arrived in that city this evening. In New York they will be assisted by the entire force in Marshal Henkel's office.

If not successful in New York, the United States Marshals will proceed to Boston, where the government is informed Mrs. Gracie may have taken refuge. When found a body attachment will immediately be served if Mrs. Gracie refuses to obey the subpoena.

Mrs. Gracie's appearance will go a long way toward clearing up the proceedings, whether she affirms or denies Mrs. Gage's statement. If she admits the conversation," said Assistant United States Attorney Smith today, "the contentions of some of the alienists will be corroborated in that it will show the conversation was not imaginary and therefore not the product of a diseased mind. If she denies it it will show Mrs. Gage is able to otherwise prove that Mrs. Gracie did make the statements, believe that all Mrs. Gage has said is the outgrowth of paranoic condition.

Comins will speak on "Pictures of Paper," now exhibited at the museum at 3:45 p. m. in Exhibition Room No. 4. In the lecture hall Miss Marion Howard Bragger will speak on "The Fictitious Colonies" at 2:15 p. m. The admission to all of these lectures is free to the public.

Rheumatism Advice

Prominent Doctor's Best Prescription Easily Mixed at Home.

"From your druggist get one ounce of Toris compound (in original sealed package) and one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime." This is said to be the quickest and best remedy known to the medical profession for rheumatism and backache. Good results come after the first dose. If your druggist does not have Toris compound in stock he will get it for you in a few hours from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take a patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Toris compound in the original one ounce, sealed, yellow package. Hundreds of the worst cases were cured here by this prescription last Winter.

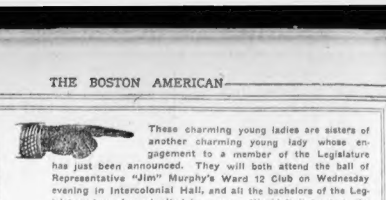
¶And They Fit Perfectly.



These charming young ladies are sisters of another charming young lady whose engagement to a member of the Legislature has just been announced. They will both attend the ball of Representative "Jim" Murphy's Ward 12 Club on Wednesday evening in Intercolonial Hall, and all the bachelors of the Legislature have been invited to come. Wouldn't it be just the most romantic thing in the world if——!

Miss Margaret Reilly (on left) and Miss Nettie Reilly. They will be at the famous ball, among others.

Hint of a Conspiracy by Mrs. Smith. That Foe of the Single Man

Bachelor members of the Legislature view with suspicion certain arrangements which have been made by the directors of the Ward 12 Democratic Club, the youngest political organization in Boston, in connection with the grand ball which the club is to give on Wednesday evening of this week, and which the bachelors of the Legislature have been especially invited to attend.

Their suspicions are caused by an announcement made by Representative James J. Murphy, the young leader of the Ward 12 Club, that several girls' clubs, all the members of which, according to Mr. Murphy, are exceptionally pretty, have been accorded invitations to attend the ball.

This has led some of the single solons to suspect that Representative Murphy has entered into a conspiracy with Mrs. Charlotta Smith, the indomitable foe of bachelors, to diminish their forces. The fact that Representative Murphy has not attempted to deny this, although he has been asked about it, has strengthened those suspicions.

In the meantime, preparations are being made by the directors of the Ward 12 Club to receive all of the members of the Legislature. The ball will be held in Intercolonial Hall, Wednesday night of this week. The event will mark the first anniversary of the organization of the club.

Among the girls' clubs which have been invited are the Newton Boston College Club, the Pennes Club, Cathedral Girls' Club, Pansey Club and the Eureka Club.

Two of the young ladies who have promised to attend are Margaret and Nettie Reilly, sisters of Miss Jennie Reilly, whose engagement to Representative Joseph Leonard of Boston, one of the most prominent young bachelors of the House, was announced early this week.

Invitations have been extended to Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald, members of the Legislature, heads of city departments and other prominent in State and city politics.

The committee in charge of the arrangements consist of Alexander H. Tolland, chairman; Patrick J. Crafley, John L. Flynn, Thomas Brown, Paul W. Cox, Charles F. Gosling, John H. Meehan, Frank J. Mahoney, John Ward, Albert Hartman, Frank J. Anderson, Thomas P. Connors, Maurice Mahoney, Edward F. McLaughlin and James H. McDonald. The officers of the club are Representative James J. Murphy, president; Dennis J. Griffin, vice-president; William Dillon, secretary, and Alexander H. Tolland, treasurer.

FISHERMEN VISIT MAYOR.

Ask Assistance to Prevent Use of Steam Trawlers.

Sylvester Whalen and F. G. Robinson, representing the fishing industry of Boston, called at City Hall and enlisted the aid of Mayor Fitzgerald to prevent the use of steam trawlers for fishing. The Mayor arranged a meeting at noon Monday, when he will have Congressman Curley present. It is said that Congressman Curley is opposed to steam trawlers, and intended filing a bill in Congress to that effect.

INSIST THAT CANCER KILLED GEN. GRANT

Operation Was Performed by Dr. Abbe; Body Removed to Governor's Island.

NEW YORK, April 13.—In spite of the many denials it was learned from authoritative outside sources today that General Frederick D. Grant died from cancer of the throat like his father.

An operation was performed by Dr. Abbe, who is one of the greatest operating surgeons in the East, and who was in constant attendance upon the General, and Dr. Dericks, whose specialty is cancer of the throat.

The body of General Grant will be buried in the Memorial Cemetery at West Point. Details of the ceremony have not been arranged, but the ceremony will be delayed ten days to give General Grant's daughter, Princess Cantacuzene, time to reach this country from Russia.

Body Removed to Chapel.

The remains were taken from the Hotel Buckingham to Governor's Island this afternoon and placed on a catafalque in the Chapel of Cornelius, the Centurian. The hearse bearing the casket was accompanied by three carriages containing Mrs. Grant and her son, Captain U. S. Grant, 3d, Mr. and Mrs. Porter Palmer, Jr., and Mrs. Horace Palmer of Chicago, and Lieutenant Howze, aide to General Grant.

With a simple escort of three mounted policemen, the body was brought down Fifth avenue today to the Battery. There the Governor's Island ferry boat was waiting, the casket was carried to the chapel where it will remain with a guard of honor until the arrival from Europe of his daughter, the Princess Cantacuzene.

At Governor's Island the staff officers and the troops of the garrison were awaiting to pay a tribute to his memory. With the same lack of display the body was carried to the chapel where members of the U. S. Grant Post No. 327, G. A. R. served as a guard of honor. Eight sergeants of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, the late command of General Grant, acted as honorary pallbearers today.

Through Lieutenant Howze, Mrs. Grant, the General's widow, this afternoon gave out the funeral plans. Following, in part, is the official statement:

Mrs. Grant's Statement.

"The funeral services for General Grant will not be held until the arrival of the Princess Cantacuzene, his daughter, who left for America upon receipt of the news of the death of her father.

"Mrs. Grant today took the remains of the general to Governor's Island. His body will be placed in the chapel of St. Cornelius. General Grant was personally interested in this small military chapel, as he had been instrumental in securing this little chapel for Governor's Island and has added greatly to it by placing in it many flags of historical memory.

"General Grant's fondness for his home and surroundings at Governor's Island causes his family to feel a deep sentiment in taking him back."

DIRECTORS OF PORT OPPOSE CANAL BILL

Declare It Is Mistake to Forbid Ownership of Steamships by Railroad Companies.

As detrimental to the port of Boston and to the transportation of both passengers and commodities of the Commonwealth, the Directors of the Port of Boston have voted to oppose the section in the Panama Canal bill which is intended to prevent railroads owning or controlling steamship lines.

The section is an amendment to Section 5 of the Interstate Commerce Act, which is intended to prevent railroads owning, leasing, controlling, or having any interest in steamship lines or other common carriers by water which may compete with said railroads for traffic.

The intention of the section is to prevent the transcontinental railroads owning the Panama Canal lines are boosting rates so that the public will not benefit by the low freight rate made possible between Boston and New York and San Francisco via the Canal.

The Port Directors state:

"It is certainly unwise as an incident to the regulation of traffic through the Panama Canal to enact a drastic change affecting transportation facilities and methods whose development in New England covers nearly a century, where the connection of steamship lines and railroads is as old as the construction of the railroads themselves.

Would Disrupt System.

"This bill commends the disruption of serviceable and efficiently operated transportation systems, involving. If the compliance of law is to be more than in form, the sale of valuable properties probably in many cases at a loss.

"Such legislation threatens to place American railway interests under a severe handicap in competition with Canadian railroads. It has been the distinct policy of the Canadian government to encourage and assist its railways in the development of steamship facilities. The result of the proposed restriction may be a severe discrimination against the American railroads.

"The argument which has apparently caused this amendment to the Interstate Commerce law is the fear that railroad-owned or operated vessels will be in a position to control coast traffic through the Panama Canal.

"The strongest arguments allege that railway companies would be in a position to, by drastic reduction in rates, drive independent competitive lines out of business and also, whenever such companies own or control steamship lines, it is the tendency for rates on such lines to be firmly adjusted above the level of normal for water carriage.

"It is believed that this danger is not a serious one, and moreover it could be entirely obviated by giving certain discretionary powers to the canal administration.

Secretary Stimson's View.

"Secretary of War Stimson, in testimony before the committee, said:

"My opinion is that to simply prohibit lines which were partly owned or controlled by railroad lines from using the canal, or to discriminate against them would be an ineffective remedy. I am pleased to say that the President does not now think that it would be the most effective way of treating the problem.

"In attempting to discourage monopoly of domestic traffic by placing this restriction upon the railroads, the law could easily have the effect of fostering and promoting steamship monopoly.

"The proposed legislation wholly overlooks many important public advantages resulting from the control and operation of coastwise steamship lines by strong railroad companies.

"It may have a strong tendency to stultify enterprise, to stand in the way of large and important undertakings having the backing of strong financial interests. It may be freely conceded that all questions of a railroad tending to deny to independent steamship lines equal facilities for their service and equal treatment in switching charges and similar matters should be vigorously opposed by the proper public authorities.

"Water transportation can be monopolized only if such facilities are monopolized, which is the essential thing to guard against."

WOMAN DEAD FROM POISON.

Providence Suicide Believed to Be Result of Illness.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 13.—Oswald Prosser found his wife, Alice G. Prosser, aged forty-four, dead in bed with a package of cyanide of potassium near her, when he returned from work. Mrs. Prosser had been ill some time and her suicide is attributed to worry over this.

Archie Butt is Now the Politest Ever

Coming Back to United States with All Latest Wrinkles in Good Behavior.

Special Cable to Boston American.

PARIS, April 13.—Whether or not Major Archibald W. Butt, military aide to President Taft, will have the opportunity to introduce at the White House the honored court ceremonies of Europe, which he has been assiduously studying since he came abroad, is a question which can be answered better on the other side of the Atlantic than on this, but the fact is evident that, no matter whether the major remains a White House attache or not, he will return home with a perfect knowledge of punctilious politeness as it is paraded in the polished capitals of the Continent.

The major came to Europe with the idea of studying court forms so that the etiquette of the White House at Washington might be made the highest in the world. He has proved an apt pupil and has already garnered a wide supply of polite forms which may some day become a part of the ceremonials of the United States capital.

Major Butt conferred with the chief French Protocol, M. Mollard, and in Rome he held a long series of conferences with officials of the Vatican and the Quirinal.

RAILROADS PROPOSE PEACE TO FIREMEN

NEW YORK, April 13.—It was unofficially announced at the Broadway Central Hotel this afternoon that three of the largest railroads in the country have made overtures to the members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, offering them an increase in wages of 25 per cent, providing they would vote against the referendum now being taken.

The firemen in their demands made upon the heads of the fifty-two railroads asked for what was practically at 125 per cent. increase in wages.

The referendum vote of the firemen is being taken at the present time. That of the engineers voted to declare a strike providing their demands were not met.

The present referendum vote of the firemen will not be completed for at least several days.

The names of the roads who declared they were ready to make a settlement on the 25 per cent. basis could not be learned.

CHARGE GIRL WITH PASSING BAD CHECK

The Brookline police dropped into all the stores around Village square yesterday and said:

"Watch out for some girl trying to cash checks drawn on the Federal Trust Company and signed 'A. H. Wheats.' The checks are N. G. Just got notice from the Boston police."

Late night a girl came into Burns' drug store on Village square and bought a can of milk from Burns himself. She handed him a check, saying: "Can you cash this?"

Burns glanced at the check. It was for $12, was signed "A. H. Wheats," and was drawn on the Federal Trust Company. Burns looked at the girl. She was young, slender, neatly dressed in blue, with a wide lace collar on her coat.

"You endorse it and I'll see if I can cash it," said Burns.

The girl wrote "Mrs. A. H. Wheats" on the back and sat down and waited for Burns to get the money. Burns telephoned the Brookline police and Patrolman Allen came and arrested the girl on a charge of uttering a forged check. The girl went along with Allen like a lamb.

Burns was told that at headquarters she said her name is Mrs. Susie Graham and that she lives in the Boston South End.

Alarm Over Illness of Austrian Emperor

Francis Joseph Bowed With Weight of Years and Hostile Factions.

Special Cable to Boston American.

VIENNA, April 13.—Worried by hostile political factions and bowed down by the weight of his advanced years, Emperor Francis Joseph is a broken man physically and his friends fear that the cares of state may soon prove too heavy for him to bear longer. The aged Emperor is ill but just how sick he is no one knows outside of immediate court circles. The Imperial physicians have orders not to discuss the condition of their patient.

There were rumors this evening that the Emperor had suffered a relapse and that his condition was grave, but these could not be substantiated.

CONDEMNS THE RECALL.

New York Bar Association Fears Effect on the Judiciary.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 13.—After almost three hours' discussion on the recall of judges, the New York State Bar Association today adopted a resolution that it was the sense of the association such "a revolutionary proposal would destroy the independence of the judiciary."

TO ARGUE JORDAN CASE ON THURSDAY

The prosecution and defence in the Jordan murder case has received notice from the clerk of the United States Supreme Court at Washington that the Chester S. Jordan case will be argued before that court probably next Thursday.

Jordan will be represented before the Supreme Court by General Charles W. Bartlett, Arthur Smith, Harvey H. Pratt and Jermiah S. Sullivan, all of whom were active in the defence since the beginning of the case.

Attorney-General James M. Swift and District Attorney John J. Higgins of Middlesex County, who prosecuted Jordan and secured his conviction, will represent the State before the highest tribunal in the land.

It is expected that Mr. Smith of the defence will open the argument when the case is heard. Mr. Swift or Mr. Higgins will reply for the Commonwealth and Mr. Pratt will probably close for the defence.

Hold Boy for Jury in Milk Wagon Murder

Manuel Silvia, Seventeen, Confessed, Police Say, Shooting Joseph Duffy of Waltham.

NEWPORT, R. I., April 13.—On the charge of murdering Joseph Duffy of Waltham, formerly of Waltham, Mass., on March 17, Manuel Silvia, seventeen years old, also of Tiverton, has been held without bail by the Grand Jury by Judge Robert M. Franklin in the District Court here.

The testimony of the coroner's examiner and police was to the effect that Duffy, who was driver of a milk wagon, had been shot and that Silvia had made a confession to the police that he fired four shots

FEDERAL MOVE TO END BIG COAL STRIKE

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Anticipating a deadlock in the coal strike conference, the House Interstate Commerce committee is planning to rush through Congress an emergency measure providing for federal mediation.

The bill of Representative Lee (Dem., Pa.) is selected by the committee for favorable report. It extends the arbitration provision of the Erdman act to labor controversies in the coal fields. The Erdman law now applies only to railroad strikes.

Labor Commissioner Neill and Judge Martin Knapp of the commerce court will appear on Monday before the committee to urge early passage of the Lee bill.

Coincident with the resumption of the conference of the sub-committee on anthracite miners and operators, here, they commenced work on April 1 are most gratifying.

"Every colliery is idle. Each and every man composing the great army of mine workers numbering 170,000 ceased work. They will remain idle until a settlement of the wage scale is reached. The success of a movement of this kind, however, depends largely upon the orderly, law-abiding manner in which each and every man conducts himself.

"Among large bodies of men when they have suspended work there are always those who may be incited to commit some overt act."

PRINTZESS SUITS

For Women and Misses—Best Known Suits in the World

A Sale That Will Go On Record As the Greatest Achievement of the Year 1912

$25 and $30 "PRINTZESS" SUITS

"PRINTZESS"—A Trade Mark, Known To, and Highly Esteemed By Practically Every New England Woman

All sizes For Women and Misses. A Few Extra Stout.

Not much room for comment. Not much need of it. Printzess Suits require no introduction. The "Printzess" reputation for quality, style and perfection of fit is known far and wide. The best known suits in the world.

The Printz-Biederman Co. had on their shelves 4000 odd yards of Spring materials which they were anxious to cut up and get rid of in the quickest possible time, as they are already starting on their samples for the Fall season. We took the entire lot at a price $5.00 less than the actual cost of manufacture.

Needless for us to say that only the best English and domestic woolens are used in the manufacture of these suits, as the Printz-Biederman Co. uses only fabrics that have withstood the severest test; guaranteed all pure wool.

White Serge Suits, also smart black and whit stripes, modish tans, browns, grays, navies and black.

Trimmed, semi-trimmed, semi-tailored and severely tailored models.

Every garment is hand-tailored, costs lined throughout with the best serviceable mercerized-de-cygne, and every one of them bears the "PRINTZESS" label, shown you in the above cut.

"Furniture Week" Begins Tomorrow

$100,000 Worth of High Grade Furniture at ½ Price

Last October we held our first "Furniture Week" since the opening of our store, over six years ago, and sold during that month over $200,000 worth of high grade furniture, probably the largest monthly business ever done by any store in Boston. So successful was that event that we determined to hold "Spring Furniture Week" in April, as there are practically as many families and hotels desiring to buy furniture in the Spring as in the Fall.

Mail Orders Filled—Fourth Floor.

"Furniture Week" is entirely different from any other furniture sale that takes place in the City of Boston here or elsewhere, and is held in all four Siegel Stores—Boston, New York (2 stores) and Chicago. During the preceding weeks the buyers of Mr. Siegel's four stores purchased jointly hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of high grade furniture. Their purchasing expedition may be compared to a H. W. for they ventured into almost all of the factories and from the leading manufacturers of the country. Were it not for this sale many manufacturers would have to close their factories for limited periods. We keep them going and take all the furniture they can make during otherwise dull times, and it can be seen that the concessions we receive are something remarkable, and the furniture is often superior to the furniture sold elsewhere at sometimes double our prices, as there is no labor in the making, as in times when the factories are rushed with orders.

STRIKERS TO STAY ON SUNDAY PICKET

Navassa paper mill strikers will be found on picket duty all day today, as it has been reported strike-breakers are going to the factory to take their places. Some trouble is looked for, as the strikers intend to watch proceedings closely. Another report received of trouble being brewed at Bucksport also will be looked into by the sheriff and his deputies.

Sheriff Hall announced last night that he had instructed all his deputies to be present at the mills today, as he was informed that there was going to be trouble. Hall, however, has received assurances from the A. P. Smith Co. and U. C. L. U. will not harass the strikers.

Turkey Threatens Jail for New Women

Special Cable to Boston American.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 13.—The Turkish Empire now has two wars on its hands, but one is bloodless. Despite the weighty affairs which the Tar with Italy has imposed on the Sublime Porte, the government has found time to wage a campaign against women suffragettes.

At a council of the ministry today, Abdurrahman, minister of public instruction, was put in charge of the government's crusade against the modern woman in Turkey. Women violating the teachings of the Koran will be imprisoned and those persisting defying the authorities will be severely dealt with. Some of them may even be put to death secretly. Despite the attitude of the government, Hallideh Edib Hanum, a Turkish "new woman" is gaining converts.

GIVES FAIR WARNING TO MR. T. W. LAWSON

Watch and Ward Society Will Be After His "Fair" With "Three of a Kind."

The New England Watch and Ward Society devotes a paragraph of its annual report, just issued, to giving fair warning to Thomas W. Lawson that the next time the society goes after him for running a lottery it hopes to "get" him.

The paragraph comes under the section relating to "Agricultural Fairs." This section reads in part:

There is a tendency in them all to go as close as possible to the line of illegality in gambling devices.

One of the most conspicuous got over the line last year, according to a lower court decision. In the Superior Court Hon. Adam Judd held it undoubtedly violated the law, but not in the particular and specific way charged, so the case was not allowed to go to the jury.

We hope we have learned to charge this offense with sufficient accuracy next time should it ever be necessary.

No names mentioned, mind you. No suggestion of Thomas W. Lawson.

But everyone remembers that the Watch and Ward Society tried "deep rit" hard last summer to get a conviction against Mr. Lawson on a charge of conducting a lottery at Marshfield Fair by giving away a horse, harness and phaeton on a number scheme.

On August 28 Mr. Lawson was adjudged guilty of "contriving" by Judge Henry B. Davis in Plymouth District Court. He was fined $100, but promptly appealed and furnished bail. When the case came up for trial in the fall of the Plymouth Superior Court at Plymouth on October 19, Judge Quinn instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty. Judge Quinn said he could not find the defendant guilty of contriving with that old horse of the Marshfield Fair to be a lottery.

The Marshfield Fair-Lawson case was immediately brought to mind when the Watch and Ward Society's annual report had been read as far as the paragraph on agricultural fairs.

J. Frank Chase, secretary and active agent of the W. & W. was asked on the telephone:

"Does that agricultural fair paragraph refer to Mr. Lawson?

"Yes," said Mr. Chase with something like a chuckle in his voice.

"You didn't mention Mr. Lawson's name, though?

"No, thought we wouldn't give the matter too much publicity."

"You're going after him next time, then? Do you expect there will be occasion?

"Well," said Mr. Chase, "you know what Mr. Lawson said when he won the case last year."

"No," replied the questioner, "can't say that I do recall just now. What did Mr. Lawson say at that time?"

"Mr. Lawson said," replied Mr. Chase, "that he only gave away one horse that time, but that next year he would give away a pair."

"Well, Mr. Lawson has a pair next year you expect to come back with something else to give?"

"Guess we'll have to come back with three of a kind," concluded the agent of the W. and W.

BIG AUDIENCE GREETS ACTORS OF HARVARD

Four One-Act Plays by Students Make Pronounced Hit in Jordan Hall.

Four one-act plays presented by the Harvard Dramatic Club last night in Jordan Hall, under the direction of Richard Powell, were greatly enjoyed by the large audience of society people which had come to see the annual production of the club.

The plays were written by Harvard and Radcliffe students and cast great credit upon the protegee of Professor George Baker. The chief attraction was the appearance of Lionel D. Barrymore, from England, in the character of "Lord Dolyn" in "The Foundlings."

The play that perhaps appealed to the audience the most was "Aimée Jordan's House," written by Ralph N. Townsend. "The Foundlings," by Annie Ambrose Hawley of Radcliffe, proved particularly interesting.

"The Kid" portrays a person trying to commit suicide in the subway. This play won the prize of $100 offered by a local theatre. It was written by Alma Carolyn Bartels.

Among the patronesses who were present were: Mrs. Eugene N. Foss, wife of the Governor; Mrs. Adelaide G. Thayer, Mrs. Henry B. Tudor, Mrs. Robert Dolliver Currey Ward, Miss Mary S. Ames, Mrs. Horace D. Arnold, Mrs. Thomas Aspinwall, Mrs. Walter G. Bayliss, Mrs. Joseph Henry Beal, Jr., Mrs. Percy Curtiss Black, Mrs. Henry F. Bowditch, Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis, Mrs. Lebaron Russell Briggs, Mrs. John Graham Brooks, Mrs. Edward Channing, Mrs. William Coombs Codman, Mrs. Frank Gouverneur Mrs. Harold Coolidge, Mrs. Julian Lowell Coolidge, Mrs. Samuel A. Eliot, Mrs. Francis H. Higginson, Mrs. Byron S. Hurlbutt, Mrs. Francis W. Lee, Miss Alice M. Longfellow, Mrs. Abbott Lawrence Lowell, Mrs. Hugo Munsterberg, Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, Mrs. John H. Stones, Mrs. A. Lawrence Hoteh, Mrs. Philip S. Sears, Mrs. George Wirgiesworth, Mrs. Roger Wolcott.

MAKES ELEVEN FLIGHTS.

Arch Freeman Carries Learners on All But Two Trips.

Arch Freeman, a licensed aviator, yesterday made eleven flights at Atwood park, Cliftondale. He carried learners on each trip but two, when he flew alone. Freeman made eight trips in the morning. In the afternoon the wind rose, so he was unable to make but three flights.

SAILS ACROSS CHANNEL.

Aviator With Passenger Flies From France to England.

LONDON, April 13.—Maurice Prevost, the French aviator, left Calais today at 6:45 this morning in his aeroplane, carrying a passenger, and landed at 1:30 at Eastchurch, in the County of Kent, having crossed the Channel from a point near Calais, France.

PUBLIC FUNERAL FOR MISS CLARA BARTON

Governor Foss, General Miles and G. A. R. Veterans to Speak at Oxford Service.

The funeral of Miss Clara Barton, founder of the Red Cross Society of America and celebrated as a Civil War nurse, who died at her home in Glen Echo, Maryland, Friday, will be held at Memorial Hall, Oxford, Mass., tomorrow afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock. Burial will be in the family lot in North Cemetery.

The funeral will be public, and at the exercises in Memorial Hall addresses will be made by Governor Foss, General Nelson A. Miles, J. Stewart Brown, treasurer of the Worcester Free Public Library, Worcester, and Joseph M. Dyon, also of Worcester. The two last named persons were members of the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment, which was mobbed on its way to the front in Baltimore, in April, 1861. Their wounds were bandaged by Miss Barton. That was the starting point of Miss Barton's long career as a Civil War nurse.

The funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. Percy H. Ehler, pastor of the Advent Universalist church, Worcester, and the Rev. William E. Barton, a relative. This feature will be of a simple nature, according to the expressed wish of Miss Barton.

Members of the George H. Ward Post No. 10, G. A. R., and the G. A. R. posts of Southbridge, Webster, Clinton, Douglas, Uxbridge, Millbury and Blackstone will attend in a body. There will also be delegations present from the Sons and Veterans of Worcester, United Spanish War Veterans and Daughters of the American Revolution, of which Miss Barton was a member.

Miss Barton was the only woman member of the G. A. R. who was connected with Charles Devens Post, the members of which will be in a body.

Besides these organizations there will be representatives present from the Oxford Lodge of Masons and Clara Barton Branch of the Order of the Eastern Star, with which Miss Barton was affiliated.

The musical part of the program will consist of singing by the Rhomas Quartette.

GRANITE MEN AT QUINCY.

Four Dollar a Day Minimum to be Urged at Convention.

With a proposal to make obligatory the payment of a $4 minimum wage for an eight-hour day not later than 1916, and with 110 delegates from the United States and Canada present, the first general convention held by the Granite Cutters' International Association will be held two years opens at Hibernian Hall, Quincy, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

11 NEW SOMERVILLE VOTERS

Primary Registration Shows Gain at the Close.

Registration for the presidential primaries closed in Somerville at 10 o'clock last night, when eleven new voters were added to the voting list.

These Figures Are Facts:

They Tell the True Story

Much has recently been published to indicate that the BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD is doing little to IMPROVE ITS PHYSICAL CONDITION. It is now in order to state A FEW FACTS.

During the fifteen months ending December 31, 1911, there was PAID OUT for IMPROVEMENT of ROADWAY and PURCHASE of NEW EQUIPMENT, more than FOURTEEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS, as follows:

Stations	$777,354.47
Shops	677,515.88
Bridges	1,316,718.03
Side Tracks	299,317.37
Second Tracks	1,666,029.25
Elimination of Grade Crossings	1,166,049.02
Block Signals	351,409.90
New Equipment, Engines and Cars	7,349,852.13
Electrification Hoosac Tunnel	528,293.39
Water Power Plant, Franklin, N. H.	259,620.60
Extensions	132,482.27
Total	$14,524,642.38

In addition FURTHER EXPENDITURES of similar character of MORE THAN EIGHT MILLIONS of dollars are now under way.

Do not these figures INDICATE that the Management of the Boston & Maine Railroad IS BUSY?

American Want Ads Bring Good Results

FREE TO THE RUPTURED

I HAVE A NEW HOME TREATMENT THAT ANYONE CAN USE WITHOUT OPERATION, PAIN, DANGER, OR LOSS OF TIME.

PROOF TREATMENT FREE. If you are ruptured, I presume you have tried various trusses, plasters, appliances, etc., without getting any real benefit. You are still seeking a genuine method of cure. I am more skeptical you are, the more urgently I seek your investigation of what I can do for you. Let me send you, at once, postpaid, Proof Treatment, with booklet, absolutely free. Miss Method, I want you to be able to truly say it is worth many times its weight in gold. Read further; you must not make a mistake by overlooking the Method that has cured a multitude of men, women and children after all other means had failed.

SINGLE RUPTURE

Trusses usually exert excessive pressure. The pressure will gradually but surely cause rupture, even without getting any real benefit. You are still seeking a genuine method of cure. I am more skeptical you are, the more urgently I seek your investigation of what I can do for you. Let me send you, at once, postpaid, Proof Treatment, with booklet, absolutely free. Miss Method, I want you to be able to truly say it is worth many times its weight in gold. Read further; you must not make a mistake by overlooking the Method that has cured a multitude of men, women and children after all other means had failed.

DOUBLE RUPTURE

requires a different pressure on each side. This was rather a severe problem to meet, and they mean added suffering. Further complications and increased danger. Miss Method has cured double rupture with ease and certainty in many cases where hope of relief had been almost abandoned. Mail me the free coupon at once. Remember, my offer is FREE.

NAVEL RUPTURE

is especially dangerous. The fat over the muscle is so thick that trusses cannot hold the rupture; therefore it rapidly becomes irreducible, or strangulation quickly follows. Miss Method has never known a person's head ever to be troubled by Method's aimed to meet your requirement of a perfect cure for such cases.

IN RUPTURES FOLLOWING ABDOMINAL OPERATIONS

most trusses are not only useless but positively dangerous. Supporters rarely give support where most needed and there is constant danger that the muscles will tear apart the entire length of incision, and a frightful complication result. Miss is a safe and painless home curative method and you should write for it at once before complications develop.

IRREDUCIBLE RUPTURES

indicate a critically dangerous condition. Trusses of the usual kind should never be used. The bowel remains only a constant menace to health, safety, and life itself. There is grave danger of strangulation, the protrusion gradually enlarges until life is hardly worth the living. My free Proof Treatment is now offered by you today.

ELDERLY PEOPLE

need a cure most of all. It will add years to their length of life and make their declining days with that peaceful enjoyment to which they are entitled. Nothing may contribute more to this than to mail the free coupon and at once learn how to obtain a freedom from chafing trusses, rupture suffering, and the ever present danger of strangulation. No one is too old or infirm to take this opportunity. Accept today my Free Offer.

RUPTURED CHILDREN

are often weak and sickly, lacking in growth and general vitality, and should have their cure. Don't delay accepting my free offer just because your child has not yet contracted any of these ill effects, for if you do you are exposing it to much more bitter experience that rupture neglect is especially dangerous to children. Don't put off another night until you mail the free coupon below and learn more about the way for your little one so pitifully afflicted.

WRITE TODAY

No matter how many doctors have told you that your case was irreducible or incurable. I especially want to send THEM my home appliance. There is no case where all forms of rupture treatments and operations have failed that I want to withhold from everyone at my own expense. Let Miss Method be your friend and relieve suffering and time-wearing for all time.

This means better health, increased physical ability and longer life. My free office is too important to neglect a single day. Send no money. Simply mail coupon below with such further particulars as you can give. I want to surprise and delight you.

We Expect One Thousand Women, Each to Buy One of These Aluminum Sets

They're worth 1.75— Introductory price is $1.10

They're "Wear-Ever" of course—it's the only kind of aluminum ware we sell because we believe it's the very best there is made.

Why Do We Make This Special Price?

We'll admit the reason is perhaps selfish—yet you get the benefit—we want ONE THOUSAND new customers for "Wear-Ever" aluminum. We know that once you use "Wear-Ever" article you'll never buy any other. Easy to keep clean, absolutely sanitary, light weight, everlasting, and things cooked in a "Wear-Ever" vessel always seem to taste better—perhaps because they are always so bright and clean. And this is why we are going to sell these regular $1.75 sets for $1.10. Want one? Come early.

(Three-piece set, as illustrated.)

During this sale, we have arranged for a practical demonstration to be held every day in the week, both morning and afternoon.

Something different in cookery will be explained by a culinary expert at each demonstration.

WOMAN, SING YOUR WAY TO THE BALLOT

Advice of Louise Le Baron, the Opera S[inger], Who Doesn't Bucks.

MISS LE BARON'S PHILOSOPHY.

Women ought not to make speeches. The female voice is not suited to orators. It is too shrill.

Weighty arguments sound puerile when delivered in woman's treble.

Woman should remain in her sphere, rather than thrust spheres at window panes.

I know there are such persons as Ted and Roosevelt but what they fight each other for I cannot quite make out.

Spring Sunshine—An Enemy to Your Furs

Exposing Furs to strong sunlight or hot or warm temperature indoors dries up the oils and takes away the lustre. It costs no more to store Furs from now until January 1, 1914, than from July 1, to January 1, 1914. The one charge of 3% (with reasonable minimum) protects you against heat, fire, theft, accidents or moths. Your Furs should be put in storage NOW.

This year there is an additional reason why you should store your Furs at Filene's because

Furs Are Cleaned by "Blown Air"

High pressure compressed air (carefully adjusted) is blown against the Furs so that no dust, moth eggs or dirt can remain. This is a big improvement over whipping, for there is no danger of breaking the hairs, leaving holes or harming the pelt; and pressed air insures perfect cleaning—no dirt can withstand it. No extra charge for this service.

REDMOND'S MESSAGE TO AMERICA

RICHESON HAS BRAINSTORMS, SAYS LAWYER

Attorney Morse Declares Slayer Under Sentence of Death Is Abnormal, at Least.

CANNOT SLEEP IN HIS CELL

Worried by Changing of the Guards, Haggard and Worn, but Religious as Ever.

THAT the prison precautions to prevent Rev. Clarence C. V. Richeson from making away with himself are responsible for his present condition of nervousness and weariness was asserted by Lawyer William A. Morse last night.

"Richeson can't sleep," said Mr. Morse. "That is the chief trouble with him. He eats well, and would be in fair health if he could sleep. But the guards on him are changed every forty minutes and there is an electric light burning brightly in his cell. Every time the guards are changed they make a noise shutting and locking. A man with a peculiarity of conscience and no knowledge of the date of his doom could not sleep under such conditions.

"In appearance he is haggard and worn. I do not think he is insane. I have never thought he was insane. But it is a fact that there were always periods when he was abnormal. To explain his character I might use the word 'brainstorm,' which was used in the Thaw trial.

"Religious as Ever."

"Richeson is as religious as ever. He reads the Bible every day and prays for hours at a time. He says his only wish to live is that he might teach religion to the prisoners in Charlestown.

"I know he said much the same in his confession, but he is actually sincere. He is thoroughly so.

"In he still the handsome, manly looking chap that he was when he was first arrested?

"I would not say so. When you are talking to him he betrays flashes of his old-time handsome, but in repose his face is old and worn. His religion has died out in everything he says. I think it is in store in him. He was a natural teacher of men, a teacher who died by the wayside, but still a powerful and effective preacher and teacher. That is the pity of it.

"His insomnia began from the time he mutilated himself in his cell. That set itself in as out my idea of brainstorm, of periods of abnormality. At other times he is as clear in his mind as you or I.

Fight for Commutation.

"What do you think are the prospects of commutation of sentence?

"I cannot say. We shall do everything in our power. Mr. Lee will arrive from Virginia very soon and we shall get together upon the matter. I am not saving of expense in the matter of the trial ought to lend some weight to my plea. It is not but most important, but it should have weight. Then the ordeal and sincere repentance of the man, the fact that he certainly is not normal at all times are important points.

"I believe that there has been no real investigation into the family records of Richeson to find out how many of his relatives, if any, were insane. I hold to the brainstorm view.

Attorney Lee will leave Lynchburg, Va., on April 22, to make the final appeal to Governor Foss. He does not expect to remain in Boston more than a week. Mrs. F. Richeson, the aged and broken father of the ex-minister, will not leave his home.

Lee Is Hopeful.

Mr. Lee intimated yesterday to the AMERICAN'S correspondent in Lynchburg that if the Governor would refer the application to his Council he was optimistic that his efforts to have the death sentence commuted would be successful.

Mr. Lee would not say whether he had new facts to bring to the attention of the Bay State authorities, but he did say he thought he would be able to make a plausible application to them in such a manner that even if it did not command their favor it would throw an entirely different and new light on the famous case.

JORDAN SUCCEEDS CRONIN.

Made Trustee of Children's Institution Department.

Michael J. Jordan of No. 2 11 Ward Dorchester, a former deputy of the Boston Insane Hospital, has been appointed trustee of the Children's Institutions Department to fill the vacancy made by John F. Cronin, who was elected clerk of the Supreme Court.

MELLEN STILL PROMISING IN SAME OLD WAY

And His Promises Are Still Held Good, at the State House.

WESTERN TROLLEYS NOW

Blind to the Wreck of the B. & M., Western Legislators Help Lobbyists.

OFFICIALS of the New Haven railroad are preparing for their final struggle to push through the Legislature the bill which will give the Mellen road direct control of all the street railway lines from the New York State line to Worcester.

The lobbyists employed by the New Haven to look after its interests on Beacon Hill are working hard beavers to get legislators into line for the bill.

They are being aided by members of the Legislature from the western part of the State who want the bill because of the extension which the New Haven promises to make in certain Western Massachusetts towns if it is allowed to acquire the Berkshire, Worcester and Springfield street railway systems.

Log-Rollers Active.

Log rolling tactics have been resorted to by these legislators from the up-State regions. It is a matter of common knowledge on Beacon Hill that this has been going on from the beginning of the session. Legislators who have pet measures of their own which they want to get through are being told that if they support the trolley merger bill they will be "taken care of."

The New Haven trolley bill is now before the House of Representatives. It will probably be reached for debate the latter part of this week. It is understood that an effort will be made by the friends of the measure to have the matter postponed for several weeks, thus delaying consideration of it until the closing hours of the session. This is a trick that has been frequently resorted to on corporation measures. It is figured that in the Summer months when members are anxious to get through with their legislative duties and go off for their vacations, it is easier to rush legislation through.

The trolley merger bill, as reported by the legislative Committee on Street Railways, incorporates the Worcester, Springfield & Berkshire Street Railway Company with a capital stock of $20,000,000, and gives the company the right to take over the three groups of Western Massachusetts trolley lines, the Worcester Consolidated, the Springfield Street Railway Company and the Berkshire Street Railway Company, as well as to acquire the assets of three subsidiary companies, the New England Investment and Security Company, the Springfield Railway Companies and the Western Massachusetts Investment Companies. The New Haven Railroad is authorized to acquire a controlling interest in the new company.

Oppose the Merger.

In return for these privileges the New Haven is instructed to build about eight miles of new street railway lines, with the probability of thirty-two more involving an expenditure of $5,000,000.

Lee Public Franchise League, of which Joseph B. Eastman is secretary, has strongly opposed the proposed consolidation from the very start. Residents of Berkshire County, in which some of New Haven promises to make important investments, are also opposed to the merger on the ground that it will be a step toward New Haven control of the entire trolley system of Western Massachusetts.

WHAT'S BECOME OF MR. LUCE'S FRIENDS?

Where He Can Do More Than Ever for Them Now, and Yet Nobody Calls.

Lieutenant-Governor "Bob" Luce finds everything changed.

At the end of three months in office the Lieutenant-Governor says he has been approached by only a half-dozen place-seekers. The average has been only two a month.

Mr. Luce told them all about it yesterday at the City Club, where he talked to the State House employees about "The Merit System and the Civil Service." Why I Eat My Luncheons at Siegel's Restaurant

By DUSTIN FARNUM

OF

"The Littlest Rebel"

Why do I eat my luncheons at Siegel's?

Well, that is a fair question and deserves a fair answer.

You might also ask why, even if I do make frequent trips to the Siegel restaurant, do I make a public declaration of the fact in this fashion.

That, too, would be a fair question, and I am going to give you a fair answer.

First of all, in the fewest possible words, I will tell why I go to Siegel's. It is because I like it better than any other restaurant in the city—because I find its service more satisfactory, its food better cooked and its prices more reasonable.

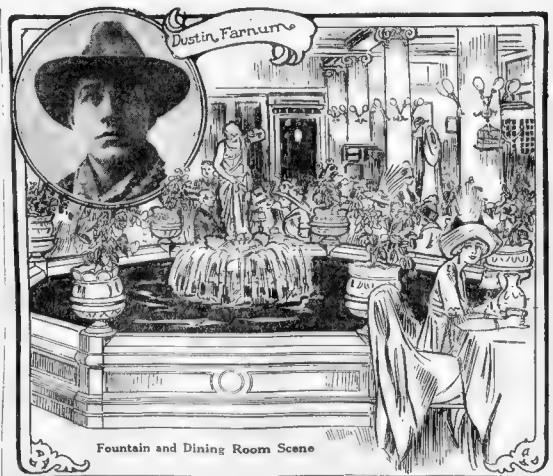
These are always the reasons that contribute to any restaurant's popularity, and I do not hesitate to say that at Siegel's I have found the combination most effective.

Probably better and quicker than any other class of men is the actor able to judge the merits of an eating place. The actor travels: he is thrust into bad restaurants and good restaurants; and his experience teaches him the difference between the good and the bad.

Naturally we are particular about the food we eat—its quality is our first consideration, for when you are compelled to live an entire season in hotels and restaurants you learn that your health depends to some extent upon the character of the food, and its cooking, that you eat.

People have often asked me why I eat my luncheon at Siegel's when I am in Boston. To many it seems strange, because an actor is popularly supposed to live only at the biggest and best hotels. But you quickly discover, after a season on the road, that the biggest and so-called best hotels do not serve their food in the best or most agreeable style.

I was persuaded to try Siegel's by a friend who is something of an artist in digging out good eating places. He had never failed me in the past, and I am glad to say that he still lives up to his reputation. I owe him a debt of gratitude for introducing me to Siegel's.



Fountain and Dining Room Scene

But, granting that the quality of food is the first consideration in picking your eating place, you must admit that some of the joys of a good meal are found in the service extended. Here is another point that is emphasized at Siegel's—and much to my surprise, too. You see, I had been in department store restaurants before, and I was not prepared for anything more than the usual department store service. I was happily disappointed.

Prompt and efficient service always makes the food taste nicer. That is another thing I have discovered while touring the country. A perfectly delicious meal is often ruined by disagreeable and inefficient service. So we can safely give credit to Siegel's for good service.

With the question of food and service satisfactorily settled, we can take up other features that add to a restaurant's usefulness. In the case of Siegel's, I think you will find that its cheerful location, far above the noise of the streets, adds its own charm to a meal. I am sure that it does in my own case, for a long season of noisy hotels makes a little quiet rather refreshing.

Attractive surroundings, too, have a pleasant influence both on your appetite and your ability to enjoy food. One cannot fail to enjoy the general attractiveness at Siegel's. The decorations are not only a treat to the eye, but soothing and refined. There is a sense of comfort in the place that reminds one of Spring days. The fountain, the palms and the orchestra combine in one happy effort to keep everybody in good humor. At least that is the way it strikes me.

So, you will see, Siegel's restaurant unites all of the qualities that contribute to the successful and popular eating place. It has the food and service of the more pretentious hotels; it has the quiet restfulness of the secluded cafe that wins patrons by being away from the crowded streets, and it has the architectural embellishments of the best hotel dining rooms I have ever visited.

These are the reasons why I eat my luncheons at Siegel's.

Now, you are wondering why I have written this advertisement. I believe you are entitled to know.

First, a good thing should be passed along for the benefit of those who are still ignorant, but who like to know of all good places to eat.

And, secondly, as the preacher says, I could not resist the invitation to write my impressions of the only restaurant in Boston that combines all of the attractive qualities of many higher-priced places.

You will find it to your advantage to visit the Siegel restaurant. You may not think so now, but you will be convinced after your first call. I was.

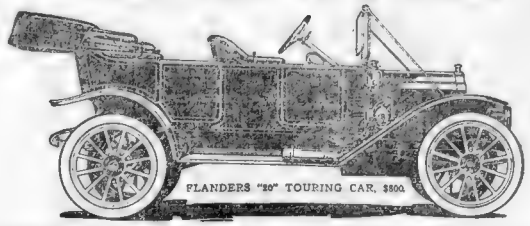
FLANDERS "20"

STUDEBAKER AUTOMOBILES

E-M-F "30"

A Timely Tip to Tardy Buyers



WE HAD HOPED that this season the usual spring scramble for automobiles would be averted in the case of Studebaker cars at least—but alas for well laid plans!

NOT THAT WE ARE COMPLAINING—not in the least. So far as we ourselves are concerned. Far from being unpleasant the condition that confronts the Studebaker Corporation this Spring of 1912 is wellnigh ideal.

THAT IS SPEAKING from a manufacturer's point of view.

BUT FROM YOUR STANDPOINT—it is different. That's what we wanted to talk about and to advise you how best to go about it to meet the conditions that obtain and ward off disappointment.

HERETOFORE, AS YOU KNOW, there has always been a tremendous—one might almost say a hopeless—shortage of Flanders "20" and E-M-F "30" cars in the Spring months—the rush season.

ONE OR TWO OTHER MAKES that were popular with buyers shared with us to an extent this pleasurable overdemand. Pleasurable, but disheartening at that. For one disliked to disappoint so many good friends. Then, too, when you know you make the best automobiles for the money, you hate to see good friends forced to accept second bests.

THAT HAS ALWAYS BEEN THE CASE. We were powerless to remedy it. The E-M-F Company was young. Had made tremendous progress, but there was a limit to financial resources. And, anyway, factories can be equipped only about so fast. Machine tools can't be wished into form.

BUT THIS YEAR it was different. This big forty-five million dollar Corporation felt equal to the task of supplying the full demand for its two models—herculean tho it was.

WITH UNLIMITED CAPITAL at its command; with the largest and best equipped plants in the world; with an engineering and manufacturing organization second to none; contracts for material placed and deliveries assured; it seemed as if even our splendid sales force would be unable to keep ahead of the production department.

AND WE HAVE DONE ALL we set out to do. That is to say, we estimated that 50,000 cars (divided into 30,000 Flanders "20's" and 20,000 E-M-F "30's") would surely supply the demand.

WE FELT SURE WE HAD NOT under-estimated the demand. We knew the unparalleled popularity of these famous cars not only throughout the length and breadth of America, but in all other civilized countries, but

WE THOUGHT 50,000 CARS would do. Some of our competitors warned us it was too many—the rest of them didn't believe we would or could make that many.

WELL, WE'RE UP to schedule—a few cars ahead of it on April 1st, and we carried over from March to April orders for 4722 cars. Most of them Flanders "20's."

LOOK AT THIS RECORD—it's almost unbelievable. In December, when would-be competitors were subsisting on snowballs and waiting for "the season" to open up, the Studebaker plants shipped 3600 cars. In January inventory month), 4000.

IN FEBRUARY 4200; in March 4601, and the schedule for April is 6000—and, as we have said, we are a little ahead of the schedule.

IN THE WICKEDEST WINTER in fifty years, you'll recall. You'd have thought that would help us by retarding demand—it did leave other makers' cars on their floors. But seems as if the harder the conditions of roads and weather the more careful people are about selecting their automobiles.

6000 A MONTH IS THE SCHEDULE for April, May, June, July and August, and we'll make them, but as the little boy said, that's our almighty darndest.

WORKING OVERTIME NOW—and men can stand only about so much of that. We don't like overtime at all. But we're doing our utmost to keep up with the demand—and we are still in sight of it, tho breathless.

THERE'S THE CONDITION as it stands today. It is up to you. What are you going to do about it?

ANALYZE IT: It means that a lot of people are going to have to wait for deliveries and a lot more will be disappointed—compelled to accept some other car—second best value—for all will not be able to get Flanders "20" or E-M-F "30" cars.

IT ISN'T SO BAD as it looks, in a way. The shortage of Flanders "20's" is more apparent than real—for our capacity is 50 more 20's per day than 30's. But it's bad enough. And it shows we have again fallen short of our ambition, hard as we have tried to realize it.

WE ARE TELLING YOU THIS because we have repeatedly asserted to dealers and the public that we would surely avert the Spring scramble. Now that we know that we have failed, we feel that we owe you a frank statement of the facts.

OF COURSE IN TELLING YOU we cannot help telling our competitors also—and very naturally they will use it against us—try to persuade you to buy their cars on the same grounds as former years, "You can't get Studebaker Cars—either model." And that'll be true—unless you beat some other buyer to it.

WE FELT SURE we would be able to supply every possible customer with a Flanders "20" but remember

THE ENGINEERS WHO BUILT the levee along the Mississippi were eminent and honest men and they were equally certain they would hold any floods that might ever come. But this has been an exceptional season—and the dykes have given way in places.

WE WERE EQUALLY CERTAIN we had gauged demand aright—thought we might be over-sanguine, in fact. But we underestimated the flood of orders that have poured in increasing volume on us thru our big branches and dealers and our thousands of smaller, but no less alert representatives. We are swamped, despite our elaborate precautions!

IT'S MOST GRATIFYING to see how Flanders "20" has gained impetus with the years. It is the story of E-M-F "30" over again—and we have ceased to marvel at the way that car grows in demand, selling itself as fast as we can turn them out. And with scarcely any effort on our part.

IT'S THE ENDLESS CHAIN principle at work on mammoth scale. When we make a good car we start it. Every satisfied buyer tells three more—and each of the three tell three others—and it grows at a wonderful rate.

FLANDERS "20" ENJOYS that happy state today to an extent greater than any other car. And because there is more value—more automobile, more quality of performance, and better looks, than in any other 20 or 25-horse power car in the whole world at the price.

AND IT ISN'T CHEAP at any point. Better steel is not used in any automobile on earth. Get that—any regardless of price. We use the best the science of metallurgy and of automobile engineering can specify.

IN APPEARANCE—it is just what you have been looking for, a smaller edition of a high-powered, high-priced car. If looks $3,000—it sells for $800.

WE FIND TWO CLASSES of people, mostly, buy Flanders "20" cars.

FIRST: DISCRIMINATING FOLK who will not have—will not be seen in—a poorly made, noisy, underpowered and cheap-looking car at any price.

THESE HAVE WAITED for years for the arrival of a car the man of pride but moderate means could buy and drive with pleasure. They found it in Flanders "20" as in no other light car. But these people are conservative, too—they don't care to take risks or to experiment with new models.

SO THEY WATCHED Flanders "20" thro three seasons. The first, the usual discovery and corrective stage, was like most other new models. Then she struck her gait and for two seasons past she has been steadily forging ahead till now she leads undisputed.

THERE ARE TWO WAYS to buy an automobile. One is to buy a cheap car because it is cheap in price, and then pay in installments the difference between that and the value of a good car—in repairs and replacements of inferior parts—and then find you have nothing.

THE BETTER WAY is to determine just what is the lowest price at which a really first-class 20 horse-power car can be made. Decide which car is backed by the best reputation for quality and service afterward. Then pay that difference in the first place and have not only quality but a car that in appearance as well as performance will be one your family will be proud to ride in.

THAT'S FLANDERS "20"—if you search the world over you will decide that way.

WHY, FRANCE BUYS Flanders "20's" to an extent greater than any other car made outside France. Germany, also Belgium, Italy, England. We exported 4000 Flanders "20's" last year. Of what other American car can this be said?

EVEN THE GREAT E-M-F "30" does not enjoy the demand abroad that Flanders "20" does. The "30" is essentially an American product made for American roads. The "20" accurately conforms to European ideals and engineering standards and in comparison with their own it sells as fast as we can supply them.

APPEARANCE is worth while—is worth all it costs. Beauty is more than skin deep in a motor car. Has to be made good to look good. A "tin car" cannot but look "tinny."

YOU'LL FIND IT'S CHEAPER by the end of the first year to pay the $150 to $200 more and own a Flanders "20" that looks the part as well as performs it—a car in which the repair and maintenance bills are practically nil—than to pay less and get so much less. And have everybody know it, too.

BUT YOU'LL HAVE TO HURRY if you expect to get a Flanders "20" this Spring. There isn't an hour to lose. You may be too late now—your local dealer may be sold up to his full allotment. If so, we can't help him. Only way is to see him at once and get your order in.

AND DON'T EXPECT the dealer, just because you have known him so long, to take a verbal statement as an order. He can't. We won't permit him, for one thing. If he hasn't bonafide orders for every car he has been allotted by a certain date, we insist on shipping such cars elsewhere to dealers who are heavily oversold.

FIRST SEE THEM ALL—hear all the salesmen's stories. Else you won't fully appreciate your Flanders "20" after you have gotten it. And you will never know how lucky you came to buy if he wrong car. See them all. Then decide, and having decided, delay no [illegible] you will surely be disappointed, as more than 10,000 persons were a year ago.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Decide Which Tire

Will you have tires that rim-cut, or tires that never can?

Will you have oversize tires—10 per cent extra capacity—or tires just rated size?

Some 200,000 motor car owners have chosen the Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tire.

Those men have found that these patent tires cut tire bills in two.

Outsell All Others

Here is a tire which, in the last two years, has come to outsell all others.

Over one million [illegible] users have [illegible]

The [illegible] No-Rim-Cut tires [illegible] the accessories of Motordom. Our sales today are three times larger than one year ago.

After 13 Years

This No-Rim-Cut tire is the final result of 13 years spent in perfecting tires.

It marks the zenith in pneumatic tires. We never can hope to improve it.

This patent type—with [illegible] control—is [illegible] so that rim-cutting is ended forever.

It is built, in addition, 10 per cent oversize, to save the blow-outs due to overheating.

No Extra Price

Rim-cutting occurs, as statistics show, with 28 per cent of the old-type tires. The new-type tire—the No-Rim-Cut tire—saves that loss entirely.

And 10 per cent oversize, with the same [illegible], adds 25 per cent to the [illegible].

These two features together mean an average saving of 48 per cent. Yet No-Rim-Cut tires now cost no more than other standard tires.

Think these facts over—you men who buy tires. You will see why most men demand them.

It cannot be ignored by one who appreciates the importance of this factor in motor car construction.

BRAKES IMPORTANT.

Much Stress Is Laid on This Feature in Thomas Cars.

Any man who is in the market for an automobile regardless of price, style or power, and who has looked about among the various makes, is well aware of the stress laid upon the [illegible] brake. Realizing as we do, that [illegible] are one of the most necessary and vital parts of the [illegible] the safety of the [illegible] and the [illegible] of the car against accidents due to the carelessness of others.

The Thomas Motor Car Company in their series of declarations gives this prominence over all others. We assert that the 1912 Thomas Six-Forty has the most powerful and effective brakes of any of its weight and cost, insuring the most safety to passengers in the [illegible] demanding, automatic as it is to [illegible] operate, the driving tire being 17 inches in diameter with [illegible] face giving a [illegible] braking area of 617 square inches.

It cannot be ignored by one who appreciates the importance of this factor in motor car construction.

NEW MEN FOR GREEN.

But Only Five of Last Year's Track Team Are Lost.

HANOVER, N. H., April 13.—When Dartmouth comes down to the Stadium on May 11 to engage with Harvard in their annual track meet, the "green" will bring some men whom it did not have on the squad last year. From the 1911 team only five men have been lost, and in each case there is a worthy substitute.

In the 100-yard dash, Oscar Owen and Williams will be the mainstays. Geddes, Dean and O'Connor are the best all-around men in Hanover at present. Dean and Harris are good in the 880 yards run, and Frank Sullivan is the best one and two mile man in college. Bell and Hoyt are two other good distance men. Captain Mac[illegible] and Hoyt will be the mainstays in the [illegible] dash. Wright and [illegible] Lancaster and Mason are [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] to [illegible] when he gets in [illegible]

To Test the Mixture.

If there are doubts in the mind of the operator as to whether the mixture is too rich, an excellent test to ascertain this [illegible] the [illegible] of air and gasoline is [illegible] If the mixture passed into the cylinders is too rich, the engine speed will increase as the level of the gasoline in the float chamber is lowered. Since this operation weakens the mixture considerably. If the mixture is thought to be too weak, the float chamber can be flooded while the engine is running and if this causes the motor to speed up, it may be taken as an indication that the mixture is not rich enough.

DRUCKE GETS DAMAGES.

Giant's Pitcher Receives Substantial Sum for Injuries.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The suit brought by Louis Drucke, the big pitcher for the New York Giants, against the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to recover $25,000 for an injury to his hand which Drucke sustained in a subway train in October, 1910, was settled out of court. It is not known just what the terms were, but from attorneys for both sides it was learned that the pitcher received a substantial sum.

Park Theatre.

"The Girl from Montmartre," Charles Frohman's newest farce with music, comes to the Park Theatre Tuesday with Hattie Williams as the star at the head of a remarkable organization of 100, including Herbert Corthell, Lennox Pawle, William Friette, Arthur Stanford, William Hoffman, Arthur Elmore, Emma Janvier, Idalia Lee, Mattie Alan and Bertha Holt.

The "Girl from Montmartre" is said to resemble those Hoyt farces in the presentation of dances and situations and it has also a dancing, gayly gowned chorus. It will be remembered that in Paris a girl from Montmartre is as full of fun as a glass of champagne is of bubbles, and on such lines was this "girl" built. NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE WILL OPEN THURSDAY

Eight Clubs Start Race, Many New Players for Fans to Watch.

Baseball fans in this section are taking an unusual interest in the opening of the New England League next Thursday, April 18. Opening Day. The battle for the championship is expected to be a thrilling affair as the managers of the clubs are represented by fast, hard hitting teams.

The ball will be started rolling with morning and afternoon games. The schedule for April 19 is as follows: Bennington at Lynn, A. M.; Lynn at Brockton p. m.; New Bedford at Fall River a. m.; Brockton at River at New Bedford p. m.; Bennington at Lawrence, A. M.; Lawrence at Lowell p. m.; Haverhill at Worcester a. m. and p. m.

The eight teams of the league have been training during the past few weeks. The cold weather has prevented any development of new players, and the old players, managers and coaches will have to do all the work. There is a rather large number of New Blood in the League.

There is much new blood in the New England league this season, and the players are all hard workers. The pennant race promises to be a hot one.

Wolfgang Is Good.

Manager Wolfgang, Lynn's new manager, has one of the best teams that has ever represented the city in baseball. He has a fine pitching staff, a good infield and outfield, and a strong batting order. He has been a successful manager in the past, and he is expected to do well this season.

By JAMES R. McALEER.
President of the Red Sox.

I am satisfied that I have a baseball team that will be fighting out for the pennant this year. I am more optimistic than I was before the training season started, because then I was worried about Charley Wagner's condition. Now that I am satisfied that my shortstop is all right I have no fears for the success of the team.

Wagner is the keystone of the Red Sox, and if he were not right the whole team would feel the effect. We have been very careful of Wagner and have not [illegible] him to play [illegible] that he has not taken a precaution. He has [illegible] everything we have asked him, and more. We did not want to [illegible] any chance of having [illegible] him. He has nursed his arm along [illegible] it seems to be in prime condition again. When Wagner's arm [illegible] right there is no better shortstop in the game.

With Jake Stahl [illegible] first base, there is another big improvement in the team. We have been short of a first baseman a year ago, but Jake Stahl now fills [illegible] and does it right. We couldn't hope for anything better at the first station.

I think Steve Yerkes fits well at second base. He has been playing the game for all he is worth, and I am satisfied with him at second

JAKE STAHL AND A BUNCH OF RED SOX

He is a fixture there now. He'll have the job as long as he plays like he is playing now.

Larry Gardner is fast as lightning at third base and he is covering the ground better than ever. We are the people satisfied with that position. So our infield is all that we ask.

Now for the outfield. Why should I talk about it at all? Is there any better in the American League? I think not. Let me tell Hooper, Speaker and Lewis are in it and there is no use to say more. They are a pennant winning outfield.

Our pitchers [illegible] better than they [illegible] season. Joe Wood thinks at [illegible] of himself, [illegible] pitching corps in the American League [illegible]

With [illegible] we have [illegible] for that pennant [illegible] play champ[illegible]

CAT'S PAW CUSHION RUBBER HEELS

50¢ Attached All Dealers

After All Is Said and Done, The Question Is—TO SLIP OR NOT TO SLIP.

Over 65% of Rubber Heels sold in 18 of the largest cities of the United States are Cat's Paw Cushion Rubber Heels.

You will prefer them, too, because of the Friction Plug—a patented feature—which positively prevents slipping, and makes them wear longer. Hence, the most economical Heel to buy.

Then again, the extra quality rubber affords greater resiliency—and there are no holes in the heels to track mud into the house.

SHERIDAN.

MARTIN SHERIDAN, the world's greatest all-around athlete, Olympic champion and record holder has written a series of articles on the coming Olympic games in Stockholm next June. This is the second of his articles. Sheridan is the best posted athlete in the country today. In this story the Irish-American star writes on England's chances in the coming games.

By MARTIN J. SHERIDAN.

NEW YORK, Apr. —One of the closest contests ever staged in the history of many a champion athletic meet is a great team that I once had the honor to lead from our old friends across the water, the United States of the World must not feel too sure that it is going to keep up the good record of the last two Olympic games, held in Stockholm next June. We got the ship—the Inland Waterways—and we got the money too. Lord Thompson, the president of the American Olympic Committee, has made it clear that there is any trouble to get the money he himself will dig down into his jeans and cough up the entire expenses of the Olympic Team.

Everything seems very much as it was that day in 1908 when I led the American team to victory in the Olympic championship games in London. Of course there are a few changes in the line-up around the old training quarters, but there are a few of the same athletes who certainly will be on hand at the Olympic games next summer. America will have a great strong team with which to win. I am by no means sure that Great Britain will not have things easy with such dilatory as W. Scott of the Broughton Harriers, who ran a mile in 4:17 2-5 for 1 second. I [illegible] of the Polytechnic Harriers, who ran a mile in 4:17 2-5 for 1 second. I [illegible] of the Polytechnic Harriers, who ran a mile in 4:17 2-5 for 1 second.

Harry Green who won the last Britain against Hungary in the [illegible] Goulding has made great strides in the last year or two. He is a good runner and has been training for the Marathon race.

Goulding Has Chance

The only man I [illegible] Goulding has a chance to win the Marathon race. He is a good runner and has been training for the Marathon race.

[illegible] compares the next [illegible] between America and Great Britain, Sweden, Germany and France. I have also been [illegible] the athletes from Great Britain. Today I can [illegible] something of the athletes from Great Britain. Today I can [illegible] Sweden, Finland and [illegible] Germany are [illegible] Great Britain [illegible] Germany are [illegible] Great Britain [illegible] Germany are [illegible] Great Britain

THE MAHOGANY ROOM—EXIT FURS: ENTER HATS

$4.85 When Furs retreated to the cold storage region, Hats asserted squatter's sovereignty over the vacated spaces. The evacuation of the Furs inspired this Millinery movement. It is an uncommon demonstration. The whole organization has concentrated on an effort to prove the power of a single price. A whim fixed the price at $4.85. Therefore, you are asked to visit the Mahogany Room—second floor—Monday and inspect the parade—the dress parade—of two hundred Trimmed Hats that have just burst into joyous life.

The head of the Millinery declares that the hats are worth from $6.50 to $12.00. However, we refrain from expressing their values in exact terms. But we dessure you they are NOT $4.85 Hats.

If you know straws you'll recognize Milan, hemp, chip and leghorn, adorned with ribbons, flowers and fancy feathers applied in many artistic ways.

Small, medium and large shapes—tailored, semi-dress and dress effects.

Every Hat in the display should be sold in a day. And having confidence in your thrift, taste and judgment we believe the Hats will hie hence before the store closes tomorrow.

DRESS TRIMMINGS

The low prices are easily explained. This is end-of-Spring for importers. They are making ready for Fall and Winter. The first step in their preparations is to clear stock-rooms of present holdings. That's the why of these prices.

BOYS' CLOTHING STORE

Where VALUE is—and beauty, also. We refer to the Boys' Clothing Store. Out-of-the-ordinary attractions there, always. More out-of-the-ordinary now than ever before. These Wool Suits for boys, from 2½ to 17 years, push us further ahead of the record.

$5.00 That's the price. It's a familiar figure. Found in company with special styles and qualities this week. We've seen Suits not a whit better—marked $7.50. Our regular $5.00 Suits are splendid. These are splendider.

From personal observation made without bias, we believe this is the busiest store in Boston. That conviction does more than merely gratify us. It acts as a spur to drive our energies [illegible] of intelligent effort is a prod. The trade movements that rise here broaden and deepen through the power of the human interests they involve. The store will soon be good all over.

"I do want a veil."

"There, Mr. Willing, do you think this one is becoming? Peep-bo!"

No. 2.
She Goes Shopping.

"WHY, Mr. Willing, good afternoon! How pleasant to meet you on the avenue like this. But what are you doing in the shopping district? Hunting bargain neckties? There, there, don't look so utterly galvanized I didn't mean it. Besides, I know perfectly well why you're here; you came on the mere chance of meeting me! Ah, ha, you needn't look so embarrassed about it. I don't mind being seen with you; I'm not a bit exclusive. Well, it was a shame to tease him—so it was. Now, as a very special favor, how would you like to go into Price's with me, while I shop a little?

"H'm, you don't seem awfully eager. What? Walk up the avenue instead? Well, we will, afterward. But let's run in here just a minute while I buy a veil. It won't take any time at all. And then we can go for a walk.

"Oh, what a crowd! I do think the people get thicker every year. Well, did you get through? I thought I'd lost you. When I saw you wedged in that revolving door with that fat lady you looked so funny. She was a real cross, wasn't she? But you were so meek, I had to laugh. You looked like a feeble-minded jelly fish.

"Now, now, Willy Willing, don't peeve. Smile a little bitsy; yes, you do seem to be the only man here. But I'm glad to have you, it is so nice to have a man to pilot one through a shopping crowd. Oh, of course, the floor-walkers are just for that purpose, but they can't go outside their diocese, or whatever you call it. Now, you go on ahead and blaze a trail. The veil counter is over that way, I think, anyway, it's quite near the ribbons and cattycornered across from the artificial flowers.

"Yes, here we are at last. Now, I'll sit on this stool and you stand right by me. Don't let women push in between us, for I want your advice.

"Oh, look who's here! Why, Tottie May! I haven't seen you since we were in Venice. Do you remember Venice? And those two long lines of Hoffman houses each side of the Grand Canal! Wasn't it stunning? You, darling, h.w lovely to see you again. Yes, yes, I do, I do want to be waited on, but do wait a minute, can't you? Yes, I want veiling, by the yard—there that's the kind I want. Oh! please don't let that woman carry it off!

"Good-by, darling, must you go? Yes, the large meshed kind. Oh, no, not that one covered with little blue beads. I should feel as if I had turquoise measels. I want a sort of gray—the shade they call 'Frightened Mouse'—though why a mouse should ever be frightened when we are all scared to death of them—— There Mr. Willing, do you think this one is becoming? When I hold it up against my face, so. Where's baby? Peep-bo. Oh, gracious, that floor-walker though I peep-boed at him.

"Mercy me, I have rubbed all the powder off my nose. Oh, no, it won't hurt the veil. I beg your pardon, madame, did I push you with my elbow? Indeed, I'm not taking up all the room. I'm fearfully crowded. And I rather fancy I can try the effect of a veil if I want to.

"Now, Willy Willing, how do you like this one, with the big polka dots? Yes, I know, only one dot shows, they're so big and so far apart. But Polka dots are so fashionable.

"Do you know the polka is coming in again—the dance I mean? They call it the panther polka. It's awful sinuous—a sort of stealthy glide—makes you thing of Sarah Bernhardt, or Elinor Weeks, but the best people have taken it up.

"What? you're afraid they'll get taken up? Oh, Willie Willing, how witty you are.

"There, do you like this veil? Don't you think it suits my hair? Mr. Dow says my hair is a yellow peril. I don't know what he means.

"You like my face better without my veil? Why, how pretty of you. Now, just for that I'll let you select one.

"You'd select a bridal veil? Oh, fie, fie, Mr. Willing. You don't really —— Yes, I do want a veil. Please show me some of your other styles. And Mr. Willing, what do you think? At Gladys's wedding next week, she is going to have—— Certainly, my dear girl, I'm ready to look at your goods, but these are not the veils I want. Show me something newer, these are all—— Why, Gladys said that Polly Peters said—do you remember Polly Peters? Well, You'd never know her now. Slim! She's nothing but a spine—— Yes, my girl, I'm looking at your veils, but I want the piece that lady has just picked up. Let's wait till she lays it down.

"Now, Mr. Willing, you mustn't get impatient. You men don't realize what hard work shopping is, until now—— Oh, my gracious! I have to be at our culture class by 4 o'clock. There's a lecture on 'Art Uplift in the Kitchen,' and I know it will be fine.

"No, I don't cook, but it's such a satisfaction to know that one's soup is made in a Greek-shaped jug, instead of a crude iron kettle—— Oh, mercy, no! I wouldn't wear a veil like that! Why, Mrs. Bailey had one like that once, and the very day I saw her wearing it I lost my amethyst hairpin. I've always considered a veil like that unlucky ever since.

"Well, I don't seem to care for any of these veils, they're not a bit distinctive. And a veil is such an important part of a costume—it dresses up the face so. These patterns are most uninteresting.

"Come on, Willing Willy let's go down to Storer's and look at veils there—shall us?

"Why, you don't seem to want to go a bit. Now, don't go just to please me. I thought perhaps you were interested in—

"Oh, do you want to go? Do you know I believe you men just love to go shopping, and you only pretend you don't.

"I am sorry, dear, that your veils don't suit me, but, of course I can't buy what I don't want just to help the store along; you couldn't expect that, could you?

"And anyway I wasn't exactly buying a veil—I was just shopping for one."

CAROLYN WELLS.

Why Your COMPLEXION Is BAD—What to Do About It

By WILLIAM LEE HOWARD, M. D.
(Written by Special Request for This Page)

ANY woman or girl can have a good complexion without artificial aids. No can youths and men. It all depends upon remembering two or three simple things. First is, keep ever in your mind that the clearness and color of the skin comes from its condition underneath; not from anything you put on the outside. Another fact to remember is that in all healthy girls and youths there is a period of two or three years when nature is making over a new skin. This causes a lot of new arrangements during which there is some disturbance of the tiny blood vessels and glands of the skin. It is at this point where complexions are ruined for life—ruined because some powder, pomade patent stuff or other injurious things are put on the face to cover pimples and blotches.

For every girl or youth are only human ones of nature forcing out some materials which are not needed in the full-grown person. Putting anything on to cover these skin outbreaks makes matters far worse—sometimes so bad that you can never get a good, clear skin.

Never use complexion wafers. Complexion wafers contain arsenic. Arsenic is a poison that accumulates in the body. A girl or woman who uses arsenic in any form to get a plump face or figure will have fat around the kidneys, heart and other organs—in other words will become diseased. There is absolutely no need for this drug or any other drug. In your body are materials for making fat, good complexions and complete health.

Never worry about pimples on the face or body. They are not the signs of bad blood or anything else in the mind or youth. On growing girls, as well as on youths, hairs are coming through the skin. These hairs it is an invisible down, but nevertheless it is the cause of skin eruptions often up to twenty years of age.

In the youth these pimples are the signs of a growing beard. The glands of the skin at this period are very active. These glands secrete an oily substance which later on keeps the beard in good health. In the girl they keep active until she is completely established in her growth; then they subside.

In both young women and men the tiny hairs are pushing through the now tender skin. In doing this they make larger holes than the size of the hairs. This leaves little openings around the hairs into which some of the oily secretions drop, and along with this natural substance goes a little dirt.

It is this condition that causes blackheads. If you are careful to keep your bowels well open—a most important fact to remember—eat nothing that gives you indigestion and drink water by the glassful, you will have a splendid complexion when the new skin is completely formed. Pimples come through. Into the body will give you in time a glorious complexion. Tea, coffee, "soft drinks," etc., injure your chances for a clear and attractive skin. So will a diet of pies, doughnuts and pickles.

Never squeeze a pimple. If you do it is to cause much harm, for, remember they are only little inflamed spots and bruising them makes them worse and may bring on a skin affection known as acne. This latter skin affection is a difficult matter to cure.

"It is at this point where complexions are ruined for life—ruined because some powder, pomade, patent stuff or other injurious things are put on the face to cover pimples and blotches."

Wash the face night and morning in warm water and pure soap. Don't use a highly scented soap. After this dash cold water over the face if you are going out into the cold air. Then be patient—your award will be well worth it. You cannot hurry nature in her processes of development.

A sudden breaking out on the skin in the full-grown man or woman means something is wrong with your system. It is probably due to indigestion, to a congested liver, breathing foul air or the eating of fatty substances. In many cases it shows the need of fresh, green vegetables, for these substances contain natural salts necessary to keep clean your internal machinery. In some individuals certain fruits will bring out a rash. Strawberries are very apt to do this. It is only a peculiar individuality and one of the acids in the body which have been taken in with the fruit. It is nothing to worry about and the remedy is to leave such fruit alone. To those who are troubled with prickly heat in the Summer the thing to do is to bathe your body in water and vinegar.

If after you have searched for the cause of a skin eruption and cannot find it in any fault of living or habits, do not try to cure it by applications. Go to a reputable physician. But here is one most important thing to remember in all health matters: If you have had a severe chill not due to undue exposure, go at once for responsible medical treatment. Most all serious diseases are ushered in by a severe chill—nature's warning that there are some dangerous germs in your system—pneumonia germs for example.

There are, however, many skin eruptions due solely to your occupation. These can seldom be cured while the cause lasts. Very few of them are dangerous but they are annoying and troublesome. Eczema, which is found so often among washerwomen, housemaids, barkeepers and dishwashers is due to the constant use of soap and water. Famed, the character of the soap is at the bottom of the trouble. Barkeepers seldom escape from this kind of eczema of the hands and wrists. Its greatest danger lies in the fact that, keep up the man or woman from regular and well-paying work. The machine kicks and squeals. Builders and masons have a certain kind of eczema from the irritation due to Portland cement.

Workers in aniline stuffs, especially dyers also suffer this. Laundresses have a form of eruption on their foreheads which is especially distressing. It is due to the steam. In fact, any substance which keeps the temperature of the skin over-hot or over cold will cause a skin eruption.

How to Get MORE Out of Holidays

THE newest movement for greater efficiency in both school and business life calls for a change in the calendar so that the holidays except Christmas and New Years will fall on Monday. This is a simple, logical concession.

Under the suggested arrangement the principal holidays will fall as follows: Washington's Birthday on the Monday following February 22; Lincoln's Birthday, on Monday in April; Memorial Day, on the first Monday in July; Labor Day, on the first Monday in September; Columbus Day, on the second Monday in October, and Thanksgiving Day, on the last Monday in November.

For obvious reasons Christmas and New Year's Day would be left as they are at present.

For workers who already enjoy a weekly Saturday half-holiday this new arrangement would insure vacations of two and one-half days at fairly regular intervals throughout the year. Under the present arrangement there are two holidays treading on each others heels in February, which is a short month and also a season when the opportunities for outdoor amusements are limited.

Many teachers and employers are in favor of the proposed new arrangement, believing that it would result in much less demoralization to the schools and business than is the case whenever a holiday falls in the middle of the week.

Why It's COLDER When Windy

A CHILL, penetrating wind does not make any day really colder, but it adds tenfold to discomfort and actually causes a greatly increased sensation of cold, or to state it more correctly, it makes it much more difficult for a man to keep the skin of his body up to the normal temperature. An accurately registered thermometer is an exact guide to the degrees of heat and cold, but it is grossly misleading so far as "feeling" cold is concerned. In no particular does this show more clearly than when the thermometer registers a few degrees below zero and the calm, clear cold is pleasant rather than otherwise, when a few days later, the thermometer will show several degrees above zero and the unwary traveller is nearly perished in the biting blast that seems to pierce to the very marrow of his bones.

The wind blows away the warm air envelope the body is constantly forming. That marvelously contrived self-controlling furnace—the human body—keeps at the same temperature 98.6° Fahrenheit, Summer and Winter, night and day. (There are slight variations in individuals and among young children, but otherwise in health this temperature is constant.) A surface as large as the human body, constantly fed by the fuel of food, kept steadily at a temperature of 98.6°, radiates heat to a degree that seems incredible. It is estimated that a man of average build, 5 feet 8 inches in height, throws off enough heat every day to raise six and one-half gallons of water from freezing point to boiling point, and of this immense loss of [illegible] conducted or evaporated from the skin.

From this it can be seen how dense is the envelope of moist, warm air constantly encircling the body. An excellent example of this is seen in the cold bath many people use every morning. After the plunge, if one be perfectly still, within twenty seconds radiation of the body has overcome the heat of the water and has warmed a thin film of water almost to the temperature of the body, and if the bather remains motionless and the water is not disturbed this thin layer protects him from the colder water beyond. Any movement of the water drives away the heated layer and the body has to warm anew what has taken its place. But if it be running water, with constant change, this warming process has no chance. The wind, blowing away the heated air, is identical in its operation with a wave driving away the heated layer of water.

Clothes are for the purpose of catching and retaining this layer, or rather series of layers of heated air. For this purpose wool is ideal (on a calm day), as it permits the evaporation of moisture, which is necessary to health, and being a poor conductor of heat, retains the radiated warmth. But being loosely woven for ventilation, an open woolen garment is of little avail on a windy day, for the wind blows through. Hence comes the value of fur, the skin of which is still porous enough to allow some evaporation, but which, by its compactness does not afford an opportunity for the wind to blow through and thus denude the body of its inside garment of warm air.

YOU MIGHT TRY—

For Your White Kid Gloves.

AN easy way of keeping white kid gloves clean: When one is going to an entertainment where white gloves are necessary old white kid gloves may be put on over the kid gloves to be worn, these being removed when the hands are safely in the dressing room and ready for removing kid gloves.

When There's a Long Tear.

MEND a long tear in any garment that is to be subjected to close inspection by putting underneath the break a piece of some similar fabric. Machine stitch on the inside down each edge, then turn under the needle to the middle and zigzag across the tear. This makes a perfectly firm as well as a very neat mend. For the hard worn places on a small boy's pants it is the best possible treatment, strengthening a thin place as well as mending.

A Simple Way to Beautify the Bathroom.

AN ordinary bathroom can be given a beautiful tiled effect by the following arrangement: Form a high wainscoting of cement, three parts sifted second of ordinary gray Portland cement, and the last of keen cement, which is perfectly white. Before the last coat dries lay it over with a marker in blocks the shape of a face of tile. The cracks thus made can be colored to harmonize with the tinting of the upper walls and ceiling.

Mending Oriental Rugs.

ORIENTAL rugs which are badly worn can be satisfactorily mended at home. Reinforce the tender places by putting underneath them a piece of burlap. Match the colors in the rugs as nearly as possible in some scant skeins of worsteds. These will be too bright, so rub in strong coffee and dry thoroughly before using. Take the worsted double and sew closely through and through both rug and burlap, following the pattern of the adjacent figures. Leave the stitches on the upper side longer than the surrounding nap and shave evenly down to it.

A Burglar-Proof Device.

A VERY simple window fastening can be arranged to give additional security against burglars. About an inch from the frame on the right of every window a small hole may be bored in the overlapping sashes, going entirely through the inner and lower sash and almost through the outer. When the window is shut a three-inch wire nail must be pushed into this hole until it is buried to the head. This nail should be fairly snug fitted in the hole, but capable of being easily withdrawn with the fingers. The ordinary sash lock can be pried open with the burglar's jimmy, but with the insertion of the wire nail that trick is [illegible]

Water Absorbs Tobacco Odors.

BY putting a bowl of fresh water in a room where men have been smoking all odor will be absorbed by morning, provided cigar ends are not allowed to [illegible] in the room. A bowl of water is also invaluable in cases of sickness where the window cannot be opened. The water will change the character of the air in an hour or two. It will be seen from this how important it is not to drink any fluid left standing uncovered for [illegible]

Typhoid Germs and WATER

THE Stomach responds to water in a manner utterly different from its reaction to any other substance. Most people believe that water is taken into the system through the walls of the stomach. This is reality never happens. The walls of the stomach are almost impervious to water.

The stomach seems to have no means of handling water, and no use for it. Accordingly it passes it along to the intestines. Almost the moment water enters the stomach the pylorus or sentinel valve opens and begins to let it through, in little gushes of about a couple of tablespoonfuls at a time into the intestine. A pint of water, taken with a meal, will get the last drop into the intestine in about three-quarters of an hour.

If taken on an empty stomach it escapes even sooner. The only concern the stomach seems to have regarding water is that it be warmed to blood heat before it is passed along. For this reason, a glass of luke-warm water goes through much faster than cold water, while ice water greatly delays the process. Hot water, on the other hand, opens the pylorus instantly and passes through almost without hesitating. As the intestines are necessary for typhoid, warm water is the best vehicle to get them there, safe, sound and ready to start the disease.

Milk, upon reaching the stomach, at once forms a solid, and is treated by that organ like other solid foods. Before milk or any other food can pass the sentinel, it must be thoroughly permeated by the gastric juices, which in themselves are pretty effective germicides.

Both milk and oysters are soon digested and passed along, but the gastric juices penetrate them faster than other foods, so that in an hour, they are probably more sterile than pork and fried things are after they have been attacked by the stomach for four or five hours.

The instantaneous response of the pylorus valve to hot water is the reason that hot water often is so effective in relieving indigestion. When the stomach is irritated by its failure to handle indigestible foods, the pylorus shares in the general peevishness, shuts itself tight and often stalks after the stomach is through and ready to pass the job along. If such cases half a cup of hot water acts as a counterstain to the sentinel valve and passes everything by and the indigestion is gone before the patient can believe it.

In case of dilation of the stomach, or stenosis of the pylorus, water does not pass through and the patient suffers from a kind of loss of water. He will die, too, unless the stenosis is overcome or water supplied by enema or otherwise.

While the walls of the stomach ignore water they greedily absorb alcohol, and the stronger the alcohol the quicker they seize upon it. This is one of the reasons why strong drinks, like whiskey, have so much quicker effect than the same or even greater amount of beer, and is actually in the physical [illegible] addition of a man in the desert, dying for a quantity of spirits in beer or light wines.

SECRETS OF SUCCESS

No. 2—For the Trained Nurse

By THOMAS W. HOTCHKISS,
Vocational Counsellor.

THE work of the trained nurse ought to be scientific and professional; while, as a rule, the nursing done by the kindly friend or member of the family is not so, although it may be skilful. One may possess all the natural qualifications of a good nurse, still the training is necessary to make the work of standard and marketable first quality.

The prerequisites are: Good health, strength, endurance, perfect hearing and good eyesight; gentleness, kindness, patience, intelligence, adaptability to circumstances to meet unexpected difficulties without fear; resourcefulness, obedience to instructions, neatness and orderliness. Quick perception and [illegible] must be united with deft and soothing hands. The nurse must love her work as Florence Nightingale loved it, and be possessed with vitality, courage and devotion to duty that will survive even in the face of death.

The work is of a grade that requires a good education, at least that of the high school, science, domestic economy and reading are some [illegible] sufficient. The nurse goes into homes of refinement and culture and often the family passes. She must do everything in a pleasing manner. Her personality, good breeding, intelligence and education will be her mainstay, and while she must take entire charge of the sick room, she is in honor bound to hold in confidence any knowledge of the family's private affairs which she may acquire during her temporary connection with the household.

Satisfied that she has the right qualifications for the responsible work she will have to do (for which purpose she should consult her family physician), she should then study the requirements of the various training schools connected with the hospital. If a doctor will tell her, in his opinion, it is best for her to apply. A certain prestige is gained by being a graduate of one of the larger hospitals; but circumstances may make it advisable for her to seek admission to a training school of the hospital in the same city nearest her home, and it may prove a profitable to build up a practice in her own town and to be one of the many nurses in a large city.

The age requirement for admission to a school is, as a rule, at least twenty-one, some of the smaller hospitals eighteen or nineteen. There is a period of from two to four months' probationary work before the candidate is accepted as a student, during which time she learns how to make the beds, sweep and dust, serve meals and wash dishes. Take care of the linen, clean and polish utensils and prepare surgical appliances.

When accepted as a student nurse she signs an agreement to remain throughout the two or three years' course, subject to the rules of the school; she dons the hospital uniform and begins her more technical training under the supervision of the superintendent of nurses, receiving in addition to instruction $50 to $150 a year for her services. She attends lectures by the surgeons and physicians, with recitations on anatomy, physiology and hygiene; foods for the sick, materia medicas and various diseases. She receives practical instruction at the bedside in the dressing of wounds, the application of blisters, fomentations, poultices, etc.; bandaging, giving bath in bed, and many other important duties including the management of contagious diseases. On graduation, she is entitled to use the degree of R. N. (Registered Nurse), after her name. Private nurses receive from $21 to $30 a week, with room, board and laundry. Nurses also find positions in institutions and hospitals with pay from $30 to $70 a month and [illegible]

Do You Understand "The Eternal FITNESS of Things?"

AN ARTISTIC sense and good taste never clash with what is called the eternal fitness of things. The most flagrant violation of the divine fitness of things in all history was committed in France during the Revolution, when a tannery was established for the express purpose of tanning human skins for the use of bookbinders. Of course, no sane person to-day would desire his library to contain an edition de luxe thus bound, nor would any sane person light his garden on a Summer night by setting fire to a human being who had offended him and over whom he had previously poured tar, as Nero did in the good old days of Rome.

In violating the divine fitness of things we commit an error in taste, of sentiment, and there are dozens of ways in which such an offense can be committed.

Don't consider yourself patriotic because you dump the ashes from your cigar into an ash receiver in the shape of a George Washington head. This is desecration as surely as using the American flag for advertising purposes, which, fortunately, the law forbids us to do. So that neither you nor we deserve a medal for not doing it.

You may have a tiny skull on your table at home, into which you dip your pen when inditing love letters. Perhaps you keep it there to pride yourself on your steady nerves or to remind yourself of the humbleness of human life. If some dear friend were to die, you would probably be eternally grateful to the sensible girl for happening to break that small into smithereens; for, in spite of your pride in them, your nerves are probably not as steady as Lord Byron's, who desired Shelley's skull that he might make a drinking cup of it.

Don't allow your little girl to cut up your grandmother's wedding dress for doll's clothes, even if it is wrinkled and yellow with age. Don't use the hair of someone who has died for a doll's peruque.

Years ago a fad flourished which made it fashionable to have all sorts of articles, ranging from footlets to napkin rings, made of human hair, and in those days it was considered quite the thing for a young girl to present her sweetheart with a watch chain made from the combings of her own raven or golden tresses. It was an expensive fad, and a hideous one, and it flourished lustily for over a decade.

In the Forest Lawn Cemetery of Buffalo, for a stretch of half a mile or over, almost every plot presents the remarkable spectacle of having a figure or group in marble in place of a tombstone or granite "monument." Many of these groups are minor masterpieces as far as are monstrous. One of the most [illegible] shows the youths and whose grave it marks, reclining on a couch, his weeping parents at either side of him. And it is enclosed in a glass cupola to protect it from the weather. It is a beautiful statue—beautiful in conception and execution as well—but the splendor and the glory of art as here evidenced makes of this cemetery, and this plot in particular, a showground for every curious chap to wander through the grounds.

There is something blatantly barbaric and uncivilized in this graphically depicted tug for the idle passers, the air of which has racked a household. And there is something grotesquely ridiculous in the tombstone to which Sarah Bernhardt makes an annual pilgrimage on All Saints' Day. It bears an inscription containing her name, and marks the spot where she will one day be buried.

Funeral wreaths made of artificial flowers, whether these flowers are paper or straw or bead flowers, are in execrable taste. Real flowers are perishable, of course, but so was the life of the person upon whose grave the flowers lie.

If your perception of the eternal fitness of things is infallible, it shows that you apprehend the inner harmonies, the esthetics of the spiritual world.

The Imaginary Exploits of "Sherlock Holmes" Outdone in Real Life by the New Scientific Detectives.

By William J. Burns,
The Most Famous American Detective.

IT is, perhaps, not surprising that very widespread interest has been aroused by the use of the interesting [illegible] scientific instrument called the dictagraph which I employed in connection with the McNamara dynamiting cases and elsewhere. The dictagraph is only one instance of the usefulness of modern science in detective work. The successful detection of crime has now largely passed out of the old system of haphazard guesswork, and is shaping itself along the lines of more strictly scientific study.

The recent progress of the professional criminologists of France and Germany is little understood in America, where very few detectives avail themselves of these new resources of science.

William J. Burns, the Great American Detective.

A[illegible] resources of science have been applied [illegible] bring of criminals. The fascinating episodes of Sherlock Holmes and other hero-detectives of the novelists have been outdone in the actual real-life achievements of modern scientific detectives. In fact the practical application of the new science of criminology, in several instances given in detail elsewhere on this page, are more amazing than the most improbable dreams of Conan Doyle or Gaboriau.

It should be remembered that these were real police mysteries that the police were as helpless as if the criminal had come from another planet and had vanished in the sky—these cases discussed on this page—unless the light of modern detective science was passed into dark mysteries which were beyond the penetration of old-fashioned detective methods.

MY SECRETS of BEAUTY

No. 172— Sleep, a First Aid to Beauty.

"Lie flat upon the bed and loosen the grip on your muscles."

MME. LINA CAVALIERI says that no one looks her best when she has not had enough sleep. She recites the physical signs of lack of sleep and tells her readers what states of mind, resulting from lack of sleep, are reflected in the face. She names and describes the causes of this lack, and, as always in her remarkably practical and helpful series, suggests a remedy.

By LINA CAVALIERI.

NO one looks her best when she has not had enough sleep. Little lines come about the eyes, deep creases form in the flesh about the mouth, the eyes lose their light, the facial muscles their firmness, the complexion its freshness and, what is most important, the mind loses its alertness, when we have not slept well. Irritability and supersensitiveness show in face and manner.

Lack of sound sleep is due to various causes, a brain under-nourished or over-stimulated.

Sleeplessness, or restless, restless sleep, follows a period of worry. There may be indigestion, cause or result of nervousness. But it is the worry. There is a mental fog or fret that envelops us. It does not ever form it takes the root of the matter in nearly always in the nerves. This granted, we must look to relieving the brain, the main station along the line, or we must supply it what it needs.

Banish worry. Take plenty of exercise. Breathe much fresh air. These are three excellent recipes for sleep.

If you find that you have been over-working, lighten your work a little. Try to spend a day or two in the country, if possible. But this is a busy person, is sometimes out of the question. If that is the case with you try to retire an hour earlier. Some dread retiring earlier because they say they know they will not sleep. Try it at any rate. Lying in a dark room will bring a sense of rest that should soothe the nerves and tend toward sleep.

Make sure that the room is at the right temperature for your comfort. If it is too warm you will surely not sleep. If it is cold to the point of discomfort, you will lie awake. Sixty degrees Fahr., or less, is a good temperature for a sleeping room. Be sure that the air of your bedroom is fresh. If it seems stale or stuffy open the windows wide and either move actively about the room or go into any other one while this freshening is taking place. It would be much better if the airing had continued all day and the air were as near the freshness of the out-of-doors as you could make it.

If your head aches from the strain of the day, a bandage of cracked ice should drive the excess of blood from the head and permit sleep.

If, on the other hand, you are anemic, and your feet are cold at night thrust them into a tub of hot mustard water. Place the elbow in the water first to test its temperature. If it is too hot for the elbow it will certainly be too hot for the feet.

If you are annoyed, while lying awake, by a gnawing of the stomach, proving that it is quite or nearly empty, forestall this by sipping a cup of gruel before going to bed. This will warm the stomach and quiet the nerve disturbance, soothing the body for its rest.

A case of protracted insomnia I knew to be cured in this simple and, it would seem, did I not know the result, trivial manner. Lie flat upon the bed with a low pillow—or, better, no pillow at all—and loosen your grip upon your muscles. Uncurl them, so to speak. Relax as completely as does your house dog when he creeps with his body stretched out, nose upon his paws, before the fire. Then breathe very deeply but gently, counting six at each respiration. To aid in this deep breathing, press one nostril shut by laying the forefinger firmly against it and drawing the air through the other nostril. Repeat this a half dozen times, counting six at each drawing in and letting out of the air.

Call into use the hot-water bottle or the warming pan. Put on your bedroom slippers if you awake with cold feet.

Pretend that you are sleepy, even though you are not, and let the eyelids slowly close as though drooping from their own weight or from weariness, over your eyes. This little device alone has been helpful in cases of insomnia.

The Orientals give us good advice concerning sleep: "Compose your mind. Be calm. Think on pleasant things before falling asleep," say they. "For upon whatever plane of mind you enter sleep you will remain during your slumber. And the thoughts will stamp them upon the face."

Beauty Questions Answered

[illegible] tells me: "I am quite young [illegible] thin, but have a [illegible] look. Will you please tell me a good something?"

Use oils and cold creams plentifully or pat lanoline freely into it every night.

Will you kindly advise me what [illegible] asks Anxious.

There is little use of treating pimples from without, although placing moistened bicarbonate of soda on them sometimes reduces their size and fiery appearance in an emergency. Treat pimples by eating lighter and plainer food and drinking more water. The white of an egg with the juice of lemon taken internally every morning before breakfast, persisted in for several weeks, has cleared the skin [illegible]. Wash your face [illegible] will fill out hollow [illegible].

Patting cold cream into them with a slapping motion strong enough to bring a flush to the cheeks should help to round out those hollows. But a diet of the fat-making foods, as fat meats, much milk-drinking with meals, cereals and sweets will be of still more aid.

A. L. A. says: "The cords in my neck show a good deal. When I take a deep breath there is a hollow in the front of my neck. Can I not [illegible] it out in some way?"

Yes, by feeding the tissues well with cold cream or with lanoline. Pat one of these plentifully in every night before retiring. The same treatment lightly applied should somewhat enlarge your bust, though deep breathing will be still more effective.

Are You FAT? I Was ONCE. I Reduced MYSELF.

I was Fat, Uncomfortable, Looked Old, Felt Miserable. [illegible] Reduced Myself to Perfect Health and Shape.

SOMETHING HAD TO BE DONE

I began to study the cause of FAT. When I discovered the cause I found the remedy. The [illegible] Method gave me an utterly different view-point. Removed the objectionable feature from my [illegible] and then I had no pain or worry for a week. It worked like Magic. I could have

at the end of the first week when the scales told me I had lost [illegible] pounds. I also felt as if I had been made over. I did not [illegible] I had lost [illegible] inches of surplus flesh. I did not have to [illegible] I did not have to starve myself. I ate [illegible] I did not have to [illegible] I ate [illegible] I did not have to [illegible] I ate [illegible] I did not have to [illegible]

The Gowns that Set All Paris Talking

THE "CIRCLAISE" [illegible] MODEL OF [illegible] "LUCILE'S" NEW MODEL.

A SMART NEW "LUCILE" MODEL OF BISCUIT COLORED TUSSOR.

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the famous "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of fashions in the world, writes each week the fashion article for this newspaper, presenting all that is newest and best in styles for well-dressed women. She illustrates her articles with exclusive photographs and sketches of her Paris, London and New York models.

Lady Duff-Gordon's Paris establishment brings her into closest touch with that centre of fashion, in which she has become the foremost dress creator.

Lady Duff-Gordon's American establishment is at No. 17 West Thirty-sixth street, New York City.

By Lady Duff-Gordon
("Lucile")

Paris, April 7.

HERE are four of my new models. Every one is, when [illegible] all Paris is talking about it, and they are very chic and charming personally—and I think them so, too.

The "Admiral" dress is an inspiration. The coat and skirt is in blue and black striped stuff. The waistcoat is of white and prune striped velvet. Around this is a girdle of black satin, with a gold fringe. The collar is an old-fashioned stock, with large satin bow. The hat is a modification of an admiral's, and is prune colored straw, with a black and gold look.

The "Soldier's" coat and skirt are of blue ratine, and are carried out on the exact lines of the French soldiers' coats. The brass buttons and belt buckle are made especially for this model. The sash end, falling at the left from the leather belt, carries out the idea of the sword knot. The ends are held by heavy military ornaments entwined gold thread. A little scarlet and gold is introduced around the neck and sleeves. The soldier's hat is of black satin with a gold tassel on the side. The long cane gives a lovely finishing touch to the costume, and serves to carry it.

The [illegible] dress is all in wonderful shades of red and purple wine. A drill skirt [illegible] around the waist, with a [illegible] drill blue and orange stripe. The [illegible] of blue [illegible] and [illegible] turquoise and drill gold chains around the neck. Notice how beautifully diaphanous is the chiffon overdress.

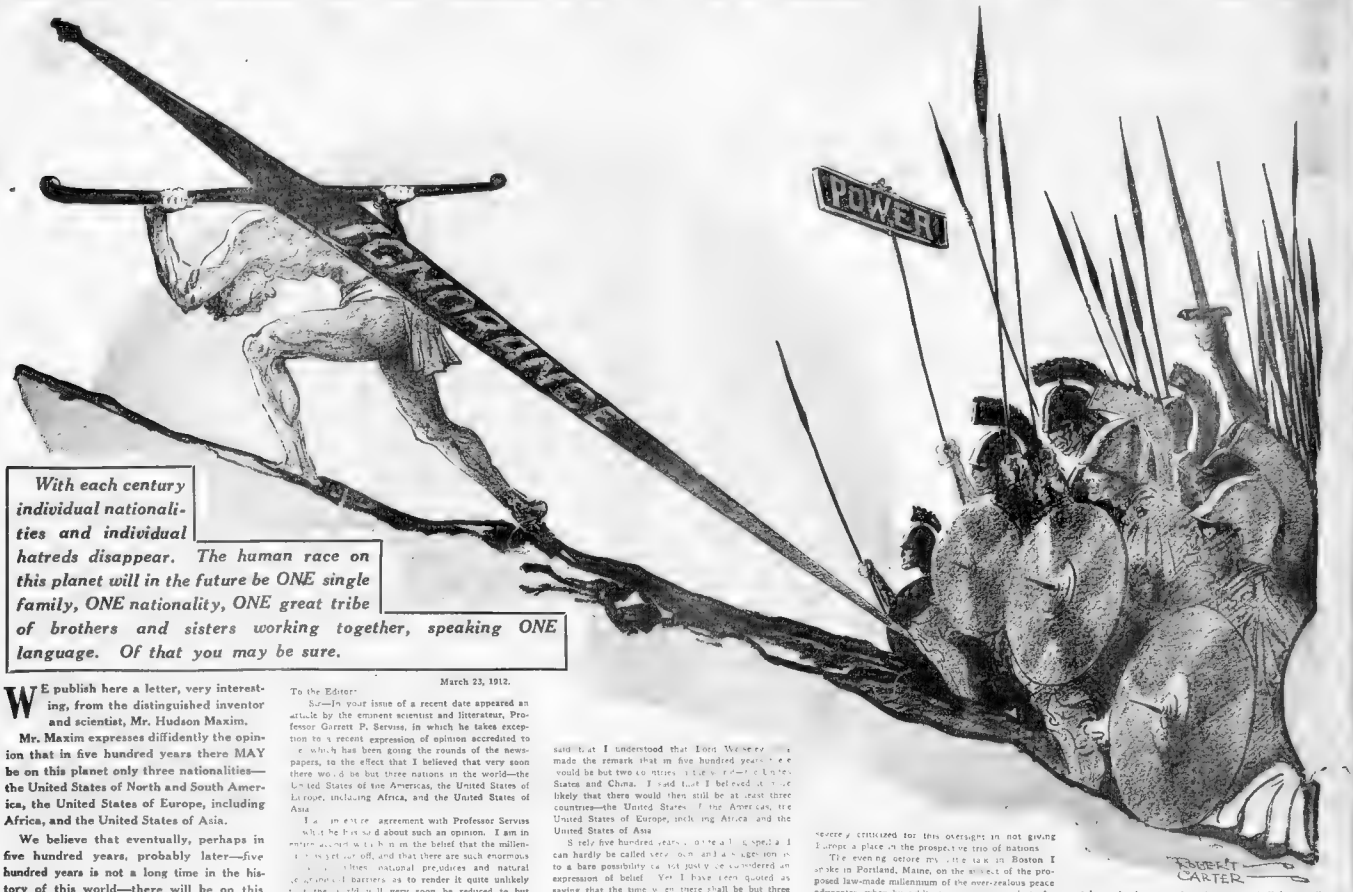
[illegible] one of the smartest of my [illegible] of biscuit-colored tussor, with white piquet. It is seen to use the new large tie. It is of bronze [illegible], with a white [illegible]. Notice, too, the new shaped [illegible] in black and white striped silk.

The sunshades of this Summer are to be curious indeed, both in shape and decoration. Some are built like pagodas, with tinkling little bells depending from their edges, and some of them are even square!

THE "SOLDIERS" COAT AND SKIRT, ONE OF LUCILE'S NEW MODELS THAT IS THE TALK OF PARIS.

THE "ADMIRAL," ONE OF THE MOST UNIQUE AND CHARMING OF LUCILE'S NEW MODELS.

The Peoples of the Earth Will Become One Nation in Time



With each century individual nationalities and individual hatreds disappear. The human race on this planet will in the future be ONE single family, ONE nationality, ONE great tribe of brothers and sisters working together, speaking ONE language. Of that you may be sure.

WE publish here a letter, very interesting, from the distinguished inventor and scientist, Mr. Hudson Maxim.

Mr. Maxim expresses diffidently the opinion that in five hundred years there MAY be on this planet only three nationalities—the United States of North and South America, the United States of Europe, including Africa, and the United States of Asia.

We believe that eventually, perhaps in five hundred years, probably later—five hundred years is not a long time in the history of this world—there will be on this planet only ONE nationality.

First, read the opinions of Mr. Maxim, appropriately put here at the top of the page. Then, if you choose, read what we have to say below.

March 23, 1912.

To the Editor:

Sir—In your issue of a recent date appeared an article by the eminent scientist and litterateur, Professor Garrett P. Serviss, in which he takes exception to a recent expression of opinion accredited to me which has been going the rounds of the newspapers, to the effect that I believed that very soon there would be but three nations in the world—the United States of the Americas, the United States of Europe, including Africa, and the United States of Asia.

I am in entire agreement with Professor Serviss with what he has said about such an opinion. I am in entire accord with him in the belief that the millennium is yet far off, and that there are such enormous racial differences, national prejudices and natural geographical barriers as to render it quite unlikely that the world will very soon be reduced to but three nations.

The most relevant thing that I can say in this connection is that the opinion which Professor Serviss criticises for the opinion that I expressed it often as a matter of a public speaker is misquoted. On the evening of April 1 I made a short speech at the Twentieth Century Club of Boston, during which I said that I understood that Lord Weardale had made the remark that in five hundred years there would be but two countries, the United States and China. I said that I believed it more likely that there would then still be at least three countries—the United States of the Americas, the United States of Europe, including Africa, and the United States of Asia.

Surely five hundred years is a long period. It can hardly be called serious and as a suggestion as to a bare possibility can not justly be considered an expression of belief. Yet I have been quoted as saying that the time when there shall be but three nations in the world will come "very soon," "in the near future," and "before very long," and "we shall live to see it" etc., etc.

Quite a good many people say that the three countries of the United States of America, the United States of Africa and the United States of Asia, leaving Europe out, and I have been severely criticized for this oversight in not giving Europe a place in the prospective trio of nations.

The evening before my little talk in Boston I spoke in Portland, Maine, on the subject of the proposed law-made millennium of the over-zealous peace advocates, when by arbitration treaties war is to be abolished, and there shall be "perpetual" agreement of man, the federation of the world," and in that speech I said that there are such insurmountable differences in the character, aims, interests and destinies of the various nations and races of this world that it is going to be about as big a task to bring them under one universal government and one law, where the interest of each citizen shall be equally the concern of all, as it would be to bleach their skins to a uniform color.

These sentiments are certainly quite in accord with those expressed by Professor Serviss in his criticism of what he supposed to be my opinion.

Respectfully,
HUDSON MAXIM

One Nation Will Include All the Races of Men.

The Good Qualities, Physical, Intellectual and Moral, of Each Will Be Preserved—and the Rest Will Vanish as Other Monstrous Things Have Vanished from the Earth.

HERE will be on this earth one day only one nation of human beings, and they will speak only one language.

That day may come in five hundred years; it may come in a thousand, or in a longer period.

And it might possibly come in even less than five hundred years, except for the physical changes in type, in color and in speech, which will take perhaps scores of centuries.

The changes that will come from this day until the day when this earth shall have but one race, and one language, will be in many respects less important than the changes that have occurred already.

In the history of the past we see outlined and well begun, both as regards the single race and the single language, the work that will be completed in the future.

Both nations and languages have vanished from the earth within history known to us. But they have vanished, as nations and languages existing to-day shall vanish, LEAVING THEIR STRENGTH, THAT WHICH WAS BEST IN THEM, STILL WORKING AMONG US.

The ancient Greek language and the Latin language are gone. But they live still in modern languages. They ARE THE LANGUAGES OF SCIENCE. As languages have vanished and still live, so nationalities and races have disappeared as individuals, and still persist as working forces.

The Gauls that faced Caesar, white-skinned, fair-haired giants, live no more in France.

The Spartans as a nation have vanished from Greece.

But the blood of the Gauls still exists in the French nation of to-day, and in the English nation which got that blood from Normandy. And in this nation of ours we have the blood of the Spartans through the Italians, of the Gauls through the French and English.

The nations have disappeared one by one, as their peculiarities have no longer suited their environment. The Franks, with their wives accompanying them to war, cannot be identified now in Germany.

The Gaul, with his yellow hair, and his metal band around his waist to remind him that he must not get fat, is not seen in Paris or in Marseilles.

The Spartan, disdaining everything but war and dying out and losing power, first of all the Greeks in consequence, is not found in Greece or in New York.

But all the good qualities of all these races, and all the power and wealth of their vanished languages, still live and make the races of to-day and the languages of to-day more powerful and more beautiful.

The change that is coming in future, and will leave but one race, one language, one brotherhood of man upon this earth, is small indeed compared with the changes that have occurred already physically and intellectually in the hundreds of thousands of years of man's existence that stretch behind us.

Already nations and languages by the thousands have disappeared from this planet.

In France there used to be a score of little "nations," fighting each other. The so-called French King was by no means the most powerful French ruler.

Louis XI., cunning and great in execution, smiled as he saw his rival rulers fighting each other. He faced and conquered in Charles of Burgundy a man at first more powerful than himself.

Louis, who gave to France the beginning of unity of government, weights, measures and money, knew a France in which the languages, the nationalities, the rulers, the weights and measures were as different from one town to another, almost, as they are now from Paris to Pekin.

To-day France, a glorious republic, educator of the world, is one language, one nation and one thought.

When William the Conqueror took the French intellect, the French blood and the French language to England, and gave to those islands the beginning of civilization he found in England AT LEAST TWENTY-TWO SEPARATE GOVERNMENTS AND NATIONS. He had more than twenty kings and rulers and kinds of government to fight. He and his successors reduced them quickly to a few.

Now in England there is but ONE Government. And the races have been narrowed down to four at the most—Irish, English, Welsh and Scotch. AND THEY ALL SPEAK ONE LANGUAGE, WHEREAS IN THE DAYS OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR YOU COULD HAVE PICKED OUT FIFTY MEN IN ENGLAND, AND NOT ONE OF THEM COULD HAVE UNDERSTOOD A WORD THAT ANY ONE OF THE OTHER FORTY-NINE MIGHT SAY.

When the men that established this country, and cut the first brush, pulled the first stumps and planted the first modern field arrived in America, they found here many "nations" of Indians. These Indians lived by killing off each other, eating each other, driving each other about—the strong always opposing the weak.

What a change has come since then! Throughout the length and breadth of this land, the spoken language is only one. And the Government is ONE AND THE NATION IS ONE, from ocean to ocean.

Here we have been doing swiftly and within the memory of one generation the work that has taken centuries elsewhere on this earth.

Our Ellis Island, which receives the immigrant, is a great mouth.

Our public schools, which receive the children, are one great digesting stomach. And the product more and more uniform, working together, to the number of ninety millions along the same line, IS ONE RACE OF HUMAN BEINGS.

From the Gulf of Mexico to the North Pole one language is spoken now. And south of us it is practically the same, one language is the language of South America.

There is a wonderful change within the few years since Columbus sailed.

Our strongest national traits, those to which we cling rather foolishly, are the least desirable.

Courage, honesty, imagination, patriotism, HAVE NO NATIONALITY. Only one nation is to survive on this earth and carry out the destiny of human beings here. And only one language will survive. But the nation will not be any nation that exists now, and the language will be no language existing now.

The language and the nation will be compounded of all the good of all the nations and of all the languages that now exist.

Why should not this earth house one single nation? It isn't such a very big planet. A man can go all around it now more quickly than Charlemagne could cross his own dominions in his day. A man can send a message around it seven times in one second—that is at least the scientific possibility, since electricity goes around the earth seven times in one second.

In the centuries to come, when the flying machines circle this earth in twenty-four hours, when men cross the ocean in a few hours, and when every human being on the planet can instantaneously call up and talk to every other human being, this earth will not seem larger to the race as a whole than a little farm seems now to some small farmer.

THERE WON'T BE ROOM ON THE EARTH FOR DIFFERENCES OF NATIONALITY OR DIFFERENCES OF LANGUAGE, AND THERE WON'T BE ROOM ON THE EARTH FOR WAR IN THE CENTURIES THAT ARE TO COME.

Each race will simply lose its own meannesses, its own mental and physical defects. Each language will simply leave behind it that which is imperfect.

And the race that is to survive will retain the virtues, the power, the devotion, the idealism of all the peoples that live here now.

And the language that is to survive will retain the beauties and the power of all the languages.

And we poor half developed, primitive human beings have little idea indeed of what the future humanity, that future language, and that future beautiful, thoroughly cultivated earth will be.

There will dwell on this planet a race of men all brothers, all unselfish, all devoted, all intensely interested in the development and the beautifying of this planet, and in study of the great universe in which our planet is an atom.

And this earth will be a beautiful garden, a part thoroughly cultivated, irrigated, climates and seasons absolutely

Married Life the Second Week

By Robert Sherbert Turner

YESTERDAY I got my first month's pay since I was married.

Formerly I used to hang around a while and spend some of it, with the result that I was always shy the rest of the month, but you bet I didn't do anything like that on this occasion. I went right home and said to Lucy

"Here's the roll, Lucy. Let's divide it up

"All right," said Lucy. "Here's [illegible] to-morrow and a quarter for your [illegible]

"Well—er—all right, I said, 'but how about the next day? I have to eat most every day, you know.

"Yes, I'll give you half a dollar every morning so you will always have some money.

Next morning I [illegible] and when I started [illegible] the evening I got as far as the [illegible] before I remembered that I didn't have a cent to my name.

Then I had to chase back [illegible] every one had gone home except old Sniffles, whos a terrible grouch.

"Lend me ten cents" I said to him

"What's the matter with you young fellow, all way?" replied Sniffles. "When I was your age I wasn't getting half your salary and I was putting money in the bank."

The [illegible] me a lecture an hour long, and then extracted [illegible] which he [illegible]

"The dinner's all spoiled by your delay," said Lucy when I got home.

"I suppose it was business [illegible] continued.

I didn't say anything.

"That's right. Sit there and sulk. You don't care how I've been toiling to have everything nice for you. You stay out with some of your [illegible] and let me sit here alone, waiting and waiting."

I couldn't think of anything to say, so I didn't say anything.

Next morning I had to ask Lucy for an extra dime, which I got after a long explanation. I also got a long lecture from Sniffles on the danger of becoming a spendthrift.

It was the same afternoon [illegible] to borrow $5. He said, "you must always have pennies of coin in your pocket, now you are married."

When I told him I was in just the opposite position, he laughed loudly and began to whistle 'Gee, whiz, I'm glad I'm free."

Got home early. Lucy was busy cooking, and she looked up and said:

"What [illegible] home at this hour

I was going to say the street car, but I didn't.

The [illegible] was spoiled and Lucy kept on repeating that if I [illegible] to talk to her when she was [illegible] expected.

NEW YORK, April 13.—It is hard to [illegible] a circus [illegible] the [illegible] audience.

T. Roosevelt in a box laughing heartily at the elephants, which are [illegible] animal which he is trying to direct.

Mary Garden [illegible] back rider.

Governor Wilson laughing at jokes about New Jersey.

Members of the Four Hundred going [illegible] suite.

Several thousand kids looking at the trick mules and thinking that they could ride them.

There was a lot more that we saw, but we haven't any more space to tell about it.

I'M DREAMING OF THE MEADOWS

Our Great Ballad, Specially Written for The Smile by Our Own Ballad Writer

WILLIAM F. KIRK.

I'm sitting in the city, the city far away,
The landlord is expected soon, he came twice yesterday. (1)
[illegible]
The outlook of it all, dear heart, I dread for to dwindle,
If I could be a child again, a child on mother's knee,
And get another spanking, how happy I would be! (4)
This city life ain't no account, I long to be a jay, [illegible]

CHORUS.

I'm dreaming of them meadows where I walked with childish feet, (6)
I'm dreaming of those new-mown hay, it used to smell so sweet.
Dear father used to snore at night, but almost every day
You could find him in them meadows, midst those new-mown hay. (7)

So that there may be no doubt in the minds of our readers as to [illegible]

(1) He came for the rent probably, although the poet was neglected to state this clearly.

(2) The grocer evidently wishes to collect a bill.

(3) The butcher was German probably because that is his native tongue.

(4) Being spanked is not our idea of perfect happiness, but the line may pass as [illegible]

(5) "Those new-mown hay." Hay, although made up of a lot of little straws, is singular. Therefore the line should be "that new-mown hay." However, let it pass.

(6) His own feet, evidently.

(7) Probably "dear father" used to sleep in the new-mown hay day times.

"SINGULAR [illegible] of [illegible] Fusileers and the Durbar Lancers. "Bally [illegible] I shall never forget [illegible] it all.

[illegible] know, but it strikes me as a standing [illegible] way for a lot of silly people to spend an evening. Too [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] magnificent. Some of them are too [illegible] and some of them are too blanketed [illegible]. And they had a most [illegible] Beats [illegible] call it. All of thirty [illegible] And the [illegible] And the elephants had [illegible] to me.

[illegible]

"I say, though, I think [illegible] was a blooming native. He [illegible] like [illegible] Africa. But the story was didn't make any sense, you know. He had his head stuck through a hole in a bit of canvas, and he was letting a lot of those silly people peg baseballs at his head. Fancy it one of the [illegible] like that! [illegible] Long [illegible] language, you know. One young totter standing near me said: 'Watch me soak him in the mush!' Another little bounder said: 'Watch me dent the dinge!' Really, you know, it was all quite beyond me, quite beyond.

"And for the life of me, you know, I can't imagine how you Americans can subsist on the sort of provender they provide at a circus—peanuts and ice lemonade and all that sort of providore. Real [illegible] [illegible] I tried it myself, you know, but I [illegible] taste of [illegible] shell. [illegible]

"I [illegible] [illegible] to get [illegible] [illegible] or, at least, I fancy the ponies were a bit mechanical.

"The strangest thing of it all to me, old fellow, was [illegible] various attractions, shrieking at the top of their voices at 'Walk in, you and the skirt!' one of them shouted to me, and I was with a lady, you know. 'Don't shout in my ear, you bounder,' I told him. 'You ought to be ashamed of yourself.' I didn't bite it off!' said the bounder. Rather a stupid affair, I should call the whole thing."

And when that happens it will not be the end. BUT THE MERE BEGINNING OF MAN'S EXISTENCE ON THIS EARTH.

When a man moves into a fully finished house, in working order, painted, furnished, decorated, with plumbing inside and flowers outside, that is the beginning of his life.

Man is now only beginning the house, only creating the garden, only establishing his home.

In the years to come, tens or hundreds of, possibly thousands of centuries from now, the work will be done—and then human life worth while will begin.

This day of ours will simply be classed with the darkest ages, the primitive days of brutality, selfishness, fighting, ignorance, misery, poverty and superstition.

Not an idea that we have today will survive, except such as are embodied in the truths of science and in the true teachings of religion apart from their superstition [illegible] bigotries.

If it seems to you that this theory of ultimate perfect development of the earth is preposterous; if it seems to you that talk of absolute peace, the end of all war, is silly; if it seems to you that life would be uninteresting without differences in nationalities, and battles, and discord, to number these facts.

The red Indian, your predecessor, contain [illegible] any kind of a planet in which men no longer scalped [illegible] other.

He couldn't imagine that life would be hea[illegible] if you did not actually KILL the meat that you ate.

He wanted to be his own butcher shop.

The greatest philosopher that lived in Greece believed that civilization could never be possible without human slaves.

Men were tortured, imprisoned and burned for saying that the earth was round, and that the number of the stars did not correspond in some way with the twelve Apostles. A decent bathtub was once a miracle of luxury possessed only by an Emperor.

The discovery of anaesthetics was denounced as a blasphemous, irreligious thing, interfering with God's desire to make us suffer pain.

The public school was looked upon once as an invention of the devil intended to destroy all respect for authority. We know now that it is a magnificent institution, that destroys superstition and increases brotherhood.

Barbarians tell you that woman has no soul, and it is ridiculous to think of her going to Heaven. You know better.

If it seems to you absurd to suggest that men will continue progressing as they HAVE progressed; if you can't realize that a human race which formerly was constantly at war, and now goes for a quarter of a century without war, will ultimately abolish war absolutely; if you can't realize that a race in which death by starvation was almost the commonest death in every nation, and which has practically abolished death by starvation, will one day abolish poverty, and fear; if everything that you have not seen seems to you impossible because you have not SEEN it, don't be sure that you are right.

Ask yourself whether you are not like the Indian who thought that life without a scalping knife would be impossible in the first place and not worth while in the second.

Heine and Honus —

HEINE—I see where J. Big-Bunk Morgan is going to have a trust in "Old Masters."

HONUS—If he does he's one of the very few left who have any trust in them.

HEINE—These "Old Masters" must have been wonderful men.

HONUS—You bet. Some of their best and highest priced works are pictures they never even saw.

HEINE—It must be hard work to paint a masterpiece.

HONUS—Not at all. It's as easy as rolling off a log, but the hard part is getting in the cata-log.

HEINE—I thought it took a genius to paint a masterpiece.

HONUS—Genius, nothing. It takes a genius to sell it. Any two-dollar-a-day artist can paint a masterpiece. All he has to do is to paint a picture just about half as good as he can paint, walk over it a few times before the paint is dry, give it a couple of coats of shellac, furniture polish, Worcestershire sauce and machine oil, leave it out on the window sill all night when it's raining, and as soon as it dries it's a masterpiece. Then all that's left is to pick out your "master" and sign his name to it.

HEINE—Then you really think that the "Old Masters" were as bad as they are painted?

HONUS—Worse. Why, do you know, Heine, that half of our young artists who can really paint good pictures are wasting their careers painting "Old Masters"?

HEINE—Well, I hope Morgan doesn't get a trust in pictures, because I don't think that Wall Street is the place for art works.

HONUS—Why not? Wall Street is full of artistic workers. Just think what a big boost for Art it will be when we can go down to Wall Street and buy on margins all the United States Steel Engravings, Amalgamated Copper Plates and Standard Oil Paintings we want.

HEINE—I didn't think that Wall Street magnate would ever take any stock in "Old Masters."

HONUS—Ain't they always on the lookout for rebuens?

HEINE—But how would it look to read in the papers: "Michael Angelos, Common, quoted at 32 to-day; Tom Power preferred at 180; Raphaels sagged to 6½; Whistlers Consolidated went begging at 3¾, and there was a rush to unload Amalgamated Corots and United Gainsboroughs way below par."

HONUS—Well, wouldn't it be a great thing if you could go down to Wall Street in the middle of an Art slump and come back with a cheap Van Dyke?

HEINE—I wouldn't have a Van Dyke.

HONUS—Why not?

HEINE—I think a plain mustache looks better.

HONUS—Don't you know what is a Van Dyke?

HEINE—Sure.

HONUS—What is it?

HEINE—What a young doctor wears to give you the confidence to let him cut you open.

HONUS—I am not talking of that kind of a Van Dyke. The Van Dyke I mean is a picture painted by Van Dyke?

HEINE—Was Van Dyke a painter?

HONUS—One of the greatest. What did you think Van Dyke was?

HEINE—I thought he was a beard.

HONUS—The beard was named after him.

HEINE—Why?

HONUS—Because he was a great man.

HEINE—By golly, that's a new one on me. I heard of them naming cigars after great men, but I never knew they named whiskers after them.

HONUS—It's a great honor, but he deserved it.

HEINE—Why don't they name whiskers after our own great men?

HONUS—Maybe they will.

HEINE—But wouldn't it sound funny for a man to go into a barber shop and say, "John, my Teddy Roosevelt needs a trimming," or "Tony, singe my Gaynor; it needs a singeing awful bad," or "George, get out the scissors and fix my Taft; it's in my lap."

HONUS—I am talking of Art. Why do you bring in Politics?

HEINE—Ain't Politics an Art?

HONUS—No.

HEINE—Why not?

HONUS—An artist is a man who has the skill of doing a thing, and a Politician is a man who has the skill of NOT doing a thing.

HEINE—But look what they are doing in Illinois. They are trying to pass a law so that women witnesses will not have to tell their real age in court.

HONUS—That's a great law.

HEINE—What good is it?

HONUS—Look how much perjury it will do away with.

HEINE—But ain't that law another knock against woman suffrage?

HONUS—Believe me, the women have got nothing to worry about. Didn't you read what Sylvia Spankher said in her speech the other night?

HEINE—No. Who is Sylvia?

HONUS—Who is Sylvia! She is the daughter of Mrs Spankher, a famous woman who is at present in jail. Sylvia is devoting her life to getting women free.

HEINE—Well, why don't she start in at home and get her mother out?

HONUS—Her mother doesn't want to get out. She wants to prove to the women that don't know it that they are being abused.

HEINE—It seems to me that women have got enough liberty as it is. Look how many married men have given up theirs for 'em.

HONUS—It just goes to show you what a hard heart you got. You don't realize how bad women are treated. The man has all the best of it. He goes down merrily to his work every day, leaving his poor suffering wife home six days out of the week. While he's enjoying himself at work what can his poor wife do? All that's left for her is to sit around in a kimono all day, roast the neighbors to the hired girl and go to the matinee. That's the kind of a life she has to lead. And what does a man do for his down-trodden better half outside of furnishing her with all the clothes she wants, paying the rent, buying the furniture, paying for the food and giving her all the money he has left? Nothing! Is that the way women should be treated?

HEINE—Yes.

HONUS—Well, there's where the women disagree with you. They want the right to vote.

HEINE—Well, now that we know where the poles are we ought to let them go there.

HONUS—It's a different kind of a poll. They want votes.

HEINE—But Teddy says that people should be allowed to vote according to how many children they got. One child—one vote. Two children—two votes.

HONUS—That wouldn't do.

HEINE—Why not?

HONUS—If a fellow got married and was lucky enough to have half a dozen children they'd arrest him for repeating.

HEINE—And I suppose if a family had triplets they'd get arrested for stuffing the ballot boxes.

HONUS—I don't see why the women should be so anxious for ballots.

HEINE—They want to vote. And you have to have a ballot to vote, don't you?

HONUS—Not in New York. Didn't we just have a primary election without ballots?

HEINE—That's a great scheme that they put over. With elections like that I don't see how a man can lose. All he has to do is to find out who is against him and then when election day comes don't send them any ballots.

HONUS—It must be pretty tough on Taft, though.

HEINE—Why?

HONUS—He thinks it was he who carried New York when in reality it was the printer.

HEINE—Do you think that Teddy is going to have a third party?

HONUS—Yes. If he gets elected he'll have one, all right.

HEINE—Still I am with him when he says "that he wants to be defeated fairly."

HONUS—So am I. And what's more it looks like he was going to get his wish.

HEINE—Well, anyhow, Taft seems to have the entire Ananias vote.

HONUS—That Ananias Club must be a swell one.

HEINE—Yes, it's swelling every day. Is it a secret society?

HONUS—No. But all the members wish it was. The initiation is very simple. You see a fellow can Ananias all he wants and he ain't an Ananaser, but as soon as he is caught Ananiasing he is a member of the club.

HEINE—Does it cost much to join?

HONUS—Only your reputation.

HEINE—When do they meet?

HONUS—Whenever two politicians hold a conversation.

HEINE—I see the Legislature has adjourned.

HONUS—Yes. Thank goodness the crime is over.

WE had a clown with the troupe who HAD to have his "licker." To his horror, we hit a prohibition town that was very strict. Long and anxiously did this clown look for a "blind tiger," and finally he found one. He had to cross several roots in his stocking feet to get to the mysterious bar, but he got there.

"Gimme a little whiskey," he whispered, when he arrived. He poured out a good glassful, and when he drank it, it blew his hat off.

"[illegible] my good stuff, better gimme another one [illegible]"

Down he tossed the second glassful, and out flew a good lilling in his front tooth.

"Say, boss," he said, "that's mighty merry stuff. Can I take a bottle of that stuff along with me? I want to send it home to help bury a friend."

The proprietor of the "still" disappeared into the cellar and came back with a dusty bottle.

"The same stuff," he whispered. The clown turned it around and read this on the label: "WHISKEY—LITTLE DROPS OF DEW."

AN old darky came up to the boss on "the lot" one day and asked for a job.

"What can you do?" asked the boss.

"Anything 'tall, sah. Ahs not pahtic'lah."

"Well, I tell you," said the boss, "I'll put you on the pay roll."

"What am Ah to do, suh?"

"Oh, we'll use you in our iron act. All you'll have to do will be to enter the lion's cage and at the grand finish you are to put your head in the lion's mouth."

The black man gasped.

"But, suh, s—s—s—spose 'at chere lion done shet down on me?"

"Oh, that'll be all right," answered the boss. "You can knock off until the NEXT day!"

WILLYUM HENRY JACKSON done took his li'l' boy to see de show. The little fellow wanted to know about EVERYTHING. He asked about the horses, what they gave the elephants to drink, who shud all the horses, where they kept all the dresses for the girls in the spectacle, who got all the money the show made, and so on—all of which the father patiently tried to answer.

After a long pause he turned to his father and said:

"Lot ob peoples in dis show, ain't dere pop?"

"Sure 'nuff," answered the father.

"Say, pop?"

"What you all want now?"

"Whar do all dis troupe eat, pop?"

"Right chere, on de lot."

A long pause, and then the little fellow said:

"Pop."

"What you all want DIS time, son?"

"How many eggs do dis troupe eat for breakfast?"

The old man turned on the son, his patience worn out at last, and fairly screeched:

"Now you HAB asked a question!"

AGAIN [illegible] ing in Newport.

Lord Leftover, our hero, was lying in a darkened room, tossing between life and death. His battle in the gymnasium with the father of the girl he loved had broken his proud spirit, and the [illegible] fair Phyllis had ripped him up physically to such an extent that he didn't want to leave his bed.

Phyllis Baker, the proud heiress, was reclining in a cushioned chair, [illegible]

Sterling, the [illegible] Swede servant entered. "I am very faint and tired it's a thing. I wonder what you could get me for breakfast."

"Ay ant sure [illegible] Steens. "All of dese har potatoes ban full of sprouts. Ay know ya ant care for eating sprouts, so ay ban tenking it ban a gude scheme put to have ay potatoes."

The bell at the entrance of the Baker mansion was clanging vigurously.

The servant went immediately to the door. And back she came almost immediately.

"Dar ban a funny looking gezer out dar," she announced, "and he say he ban looking for a faller named Mysiert Leftover. He tell me he skod stay right out dar until he find dis har faller."

"Then let him stay," said Phyllis Baker. "There ain't no such person in this place!"

"What's all the boiler?"

The plebeian voice of Pa Baker broke into the room.

"No pods, p pa only some bug," said Phyllis Baker. "He wants to see Mysiert Leftover for some [illegible]"

"Oh, very well," said Pa Baker, "in there an ambulance waiting outside? You know that I used him something shameful. It wouldn't be fair for anybody to carry him away without attending to his wounds."

"You don't need to git so gay, dad," said Phyllis Baker; "because that there man they are talking about is the only man in the world for me; the man that I have swore to love. If he goes out of this house, I go out with him."

"All right," Baker to his fair daughter. "I am going to take [illegible] I looks like him now. Wit twenty minutes [illegible] girl"

The snow came down in fleecy torrents.

The stranger, who had waited outside the door for the chance to get an interview with the hero of this thrilling recital soon assumed the general appearance of a snowman.

It sure looks like a blizzard now," said Pa Baker, rubbing his hands together goodnily. "Steena, bring down that pinoy Lord Leftover."

Bam! Bam! Bam!

Lord Leftover, for it was indeed none other, arose from his sitting posture and approached his prospective wife. Then two strong arms propelled Phyllis Baker and our hero out of the front door, off the front porch, off the front lawn, and into the blizzardy street.

"Who dares to do this deed?" asked Lord Leftover, his voice rising clear above the roar of the storm. "Who dares to send my prospective bride into the cold?"

"Your prospective father-in-law," replied Pa Baker. "The same man that won the fight in the barn."

No. 1—Marriage

MARRIAGE is the thing that those people get who are out hunting for trouble, and find it. It takes five minutes and $2.50 to get married, and a year and two lawyers and three private detectives and $2,789.39 to get unmarried. After which there is alimony and peace and quiet of spirit until you die instanter.

Marriage is a very old institution. It came in at the time the Gates of Paradise banged shut after Adam and Eve, and is contemporaneous with a life sentence of hard labor, sickness, death and other afflictions, with which it has continued to run a neck-and-neck race ever since. Some victims, who have experienced its tortures, hold that the church wedding has got all other human sufferings tied to the post, but that is a matter of individual opinion.

Why people marry is the real riddle of the Sphinx. Occasionally a man and woman think that they have guessed it, but about the time their wedding presents begin to accumulate dust they also join the ranks of the "Search me's," and the great mystery remains unsolved.

Some philosophers account for the prevalence of marriage on the ground that with certain people, such as Nat Goodwin, Lillian Russell, Brigham Young and others, it is a fixed habit of which they cannot break themselves. Other investigators into the subject contend that it is due to an adventurous spirit, which prompts the foolhardy to take hairbreadth risks, while still others affirm that the reason wedding bells still chime is because every minute a sucker is born.

The real explanation of matrimony, however, appears to be that an All Wise Providence instituted it as a disciplinary measure to chasten us and fit us for the life to come by strewing the present existence with tacks. It also inculcates in us the lesson that we are mere worms of the dust, for none of us have any idea what poor, weak, miserable creatures we are until we have a partner of our bosom to remind us of our faults.

There is no other known remedy for conceit equal to marriage, for after he has committed wedlock a man finds that his head has shrunken so that he can wear a boy's size hat. It is believed that Mr. T. Roosevelt is the only man who ever had two wives and still maintained a good opinion of himself.

When a man marries he gives up his pocketbook, his hatchkey, all of his old friends and his right to wear the kind of collar he likes. He also resigns from all of his old clubs and qualifies for life membership in the Amalgamated Order of Ananias. Likewise he lays his digestion at the feet of his Bride.

In return for all this he gets a mother-in-law and a large family of his wife's relatives and the privilege of spending his money on milliners and dressmakers, instead of poolrooms and saloons, but at the same time he also acquires a Good Working Excuse for everything he does and doesn't do, and Somebody to Lay the Blame On when he goes into bankruptcy, so he breaks about even.

When a woman marries she lets herself in for an eighteen-hour-a-day job without any pay envelope, but as she gets along with it a Permanent Grievance also likewise is met with Consolation.

The most amazing thing about marriage is the way it looks before and after taking. Nothing else on earth compares to it except a basket of peaches with a piece of pink mosquito netting over it.

How Things Came About—No. 1

Spring Housecleaning

IN the year 53,982,736,455,267 before Adam, Spring housecleaning was automatic.

It was discovered by a Mr. Oog.

He, with several others, had so far advanced in civilization as to come down out of trees and take up their abodes in caves. There is considerable less draft in a cave than in a tree. This is especially noticeable in Winter.

The first Winter of man in caves was quite comfortable. But in the Spring the annual floods came and the first thing Mr. Oog knew his nice pendicta-saurianus fur rug was afloat. So was his bonloca bough couch, his best society war club, and several strips of dried mammoth spare ribs.

Being Spring, he promptly moved out of doors. Both he and Mrs. Oog were considerably annoyed until after the floods, when Mrs. Oog discovered that nothing in the cave was actually harmed, while the cave home was washed out as spick and span clean as possible.

Then came the beginning of that most insidious and dreadful and terrible of customs—Spring housecleaning.

Mr. Oog had to get a lot of furs and assist Mrs. Oog in drying the inside of their cave. Then she thought they needed some new rugs, and he was forced to go out and slay a couple more pendicta-saurianus for this. After that Mrs. Oog decided her cave bear skin kimono was too shabby to go with the new cave furnishings and poor Oog had to dig up a couple of bushels of shells to pay for a new one.

The next year the floods came again. There was more cave cleaning, more expense for Oog and more work for him, as he had to assist in cleaning up the yard in front of the cave, drying the walls, getting new skins to furnish it with, and even take some quartz crystals and scratch a sort of dado around the cave walls.

Water was carried in great clay-baked urns, and other pottery decorated with skinny-legged people, barks with soapy qualities were gathered, the poor Mr. Oogs had to turn out and help, and eat their maize porridge off the front door rock while the Mrs. Oogs started in cleaning the house. After that, more blankets must be woven from bark fibres, and new pottery must be baked, and new garments made, and, by the time it was all over, the Spring housecleaning had cost the Mr. Oogs all the shell money or wampum or whatever the tainted stuff was made of in those days, they could save during the year.

Now when Spring comes, the woman grows restless. Nothing suits her. It is the same old feeling that bothered Mrs. Oog away back 53,982,736,455,267 years before Adam, when she awaited the Spring floods to rush down and clean out her cave.

Several retired yeggmen arrive and pull up the carpets by the roots and drag them away where they are macerated and brought back, clean and frazed (this only costs $5 or $6 per carpet). Then the mattresses must be renovated. They are taken away and the good curled hair removed and a cheaper grade put back in the ticking. Almost any renovator will do this for $3.95 per mattress.

Then the painters come and burn off the old finish and put new finish on the woodwork for about $17 per room. Then the woman discovers that the ceilings must be whitened and new wall paper must be secured and put on, and then the walls look so nice the old furniture will never do, so the new furniture is sent out. After that the old carpets, although just cleaned, are too shabby for the new furniture, so new carpets are procured.

Take it altogether, Spring housecleaning costs about $2,200. And it all came about by accident away back when Mrs. Oog discovered that Spring floods washed out her cave floors.

Spring housecleaning can be avoided in a most simple manner.

Tribes of North America THE PIKERS

(Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner. Great Britain Rights Reserved.)

By Lewis Allen

"GARCON, my hat!"

"Garcon, my stick!"

"Garcon, my gloves!"

Here, Garcon, HERE!" and the pretty gentleman rises on the fortissimo as, with a flourish, he hands the waiter a dollar bill that all may see, and makes his departure, after which he jumps a car and rides to his honest little hall bedroom.

A red little woman in black calls at his rooming house.

"Please, sir," she says, "can you give me a little on your laundry bill? The babies are sick and I can't get anything in the house for 'em and it has run so long now, nearly six months"——

"For the love of Pete," says the pretty gentleman, "for the love of Pete, Missus Drudger, why do all the old women come pestering around for a little laundry bill. I'll pay you bye-and-bye, but not now, not now"——

"Please, sir," pleads the tired little woman in black.

But the pretty gentleman has closed the door on her.

Yes. You are right, the pretty gentleman's middle name is "Piker." He is one of the great North American Tribe of Pikers.

Pikers come in all sizes. They are closely allied to Bluffers and the Pretenders," but may be distinguished through the fact that a Piker will always [illegible] regardless of who suffers.

Yes, indeed, the Pikers" come in all sizes, from the pretty gent, [illegible] who makes a noise like a steam calliope when he hands the waiter a dollar bill and cheats his widowed washerwoman, to the tarnished citizen who [illegible] about town in an apricot-colored ninety-horse-power automobile, which he bought with [illegible] secured by mortgaging his wife's home.

You Miss [illegible] and I [illegible] Piker. I [illegible] Mr. Wimply. Much obliged for your hat and your [illegible] and I hope you can mend that hole I [illegible] in your silk stockings with, too. But [illegible] I must go to [illegible] borrowed your silk [illegible] Mr. Wimply has got a perfect crush on me. He talked about Tennyson and Keats or somethin' like that, and I agreed with him perfectly; but honest to goodness, Madge, I never heard any ragtime stuff them fellers wrote. Now, Madge, he's going to call here tomorrow night, and I won't get home until half an hour after he calls, and I want you to ask him to wait in your room. Tell him it is my room, and for goodness sake don't dare tell him I work in Raeburg's department store on the picture counter because I told him I was a art student and was merely a adviser up to the store on what they should buy, and so he says to me" [illegible]

And so on and so forth. She is a "Lady Piker."

Or Mr. Sweller stops at the Tin Foil Cafe and buys a few rounds of fancy drinks for his friends, takes a taxi up to the vaudeville house and watches the show for an hour or so, gets a couple of joy rides by prying some automobiles and finally goes home.

"Oh, dear, John, I was so embarrassed," says Mrs. Sweller, "the grocery man and the laundry man called and I didn't have a cent and I—I wanted to get me a hat this week, I haven't had one this year and Willie needs new shoes and"——

"For heaven's sake, woman, do you think I am made of money? You'd spend a million dollars a day if I gave it to you. I wish you could stop somewhere a minute and try to smile a little when I come home," and Sweller sits down in the Morris chair, lights a twenty five-cent perfecto, unwraps the latest $1.50 best seller he has just bought, and proceeds to smoke and read until dinner is ready.

He's a Piker—— but what's the use? You know him! You know 'em all.

Be a Boob or a Brute or a Mutt—but not a Piker.

Mr. Twiggs, the horticulturist, is experimenting in his laboratory, and a little later on he hopes to report a successful grafting of buttercups onto milkweeds so's you can grow fresh buttermilk right in the garden.

A young lady out on the Ridge Road created some excitement in her family the other day by trying to wear a pair of No. 3 pumps on a No. 6 foot. She got 'em on all right but couldn't get 'em off. Finally her brothers answered her cry of "all hands to the pumps" and they succeeded in yanking them from her feet.

IT HAS TAKEN FIFTY YEARS

To give Matthew B. Brady credit for being the greatest pictorial reporter that ever lived. But so it turned out!

HE PHOTOGRAPHED THE CIVIL WAR

For four long weary years he was the man behind the camera; and a magic camera it was. Untold thousands would have been paid him for his wonderful war pictures but there was no process for fac-simile copper-plate reproduction. Brady's well-nigh priceless pictures were sold to the United States Government and are now in possession of the War Dept. which has given permission to reproduce the wonderful

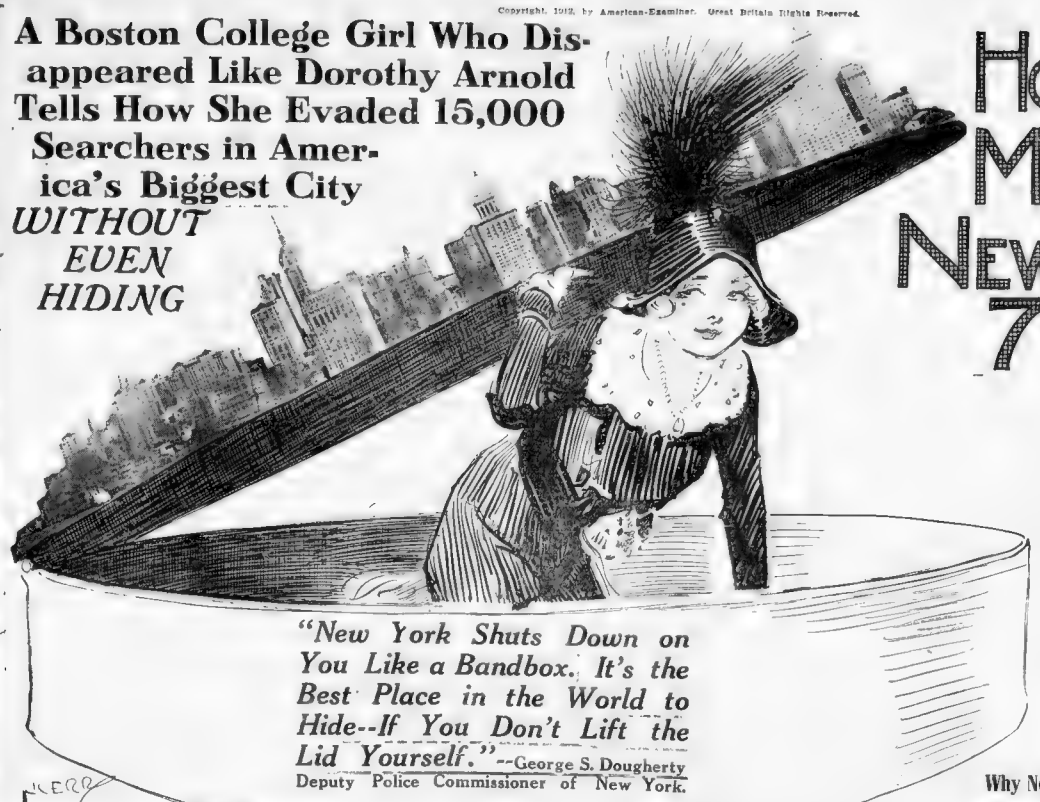
A Boston College Girl Who Disappeared Like Dorothy Arnold Tells How She Evaded 15,000 Searchers in America's Biggest City WITHOUT EVEN HIDING

HOW I LOST MYSELF IN NEW YORK FOR 7 YEARS.



"New York Shuts Down on You Like a Bandbox. It's the Best Place in the World to Hide--If You Don't Lift the Lid Yourself." --George S. Dougherty Deputy Police Commissioner of New York.

SEVEN years ago Frances G. Tansom, a college girl of Boston, vanished completely as Dorothy Arnold did.

The police, sleuths, the police, private detectives hired by the girl's mother, numerous relatives and friends, all engaged in a most thorough and painstaking search for her. Supposed clues which, in some cases, led as far as Porto Rico were followed only to be abandoned, and years later, after it was believed that every possible effort had been made to find the girl, the search was given up. The mother mourned the girl as dead.

A few weeks ago Miss Tansom, now Mrs. W. A. Roberts, turned up voluntarily. She declared that all the time she had been in New York entirely undisguised, except for the use of an assumed name, and without making any effort to conceal herself.

In view of the disappearance of Dorothy Arnold and the occurrence of thousands of similar though less notorious cases every year, the ease with which this young college girl was able to elude the press, the police and astute private detectives by simply remaining in New York indicates that [illegible] which, properly [illegible] reveal the circumstances [illegible] Dorothy Arnold's disappearance.

Why New York offers [illegible] to hide [illegible] explains Mrs. W. A. Roberts and Deputy Police Commissioner of New York George S. Dougherty.

Why New York Is the Best Hiding Place

By Mrs. W. A. Roberts, the Girl Who Lost Herself in New York Without Hiding.

By George S. Dougherty

Second Police Deputy Commissioner of New York

Deputy George S. Dougherty.

BECAUSE I was dissatisfied with myself as a student at Boston University, I decided to give it all up and start life anew in New York. I was nineteen years old, and was living at the Young Women's Christian Association, in Boston, at the time.

I had spent my Christmas vacation with my mother, and when I left her on January 2, 1906, it was with the intention of never returning. I stayed at my room in Boston that night, and the next day took the train for New York, with nothing but a valise, a few dollars in my pocketbook, and a determination to cut away from everything that I believed was responsible for my nervous condition.

When I decided to leave Boston and seek my fortune in New York, I realized that I could not hope to pass unnoticed under my own rather unusual name.

Before leaving Boston, therefore, I scrutinized every article that went into my suit case, trying to make sure that no marks of identification were left.

Some clothing which I had recently bought and not yet marked, and a few articles from which my name could easily be removed, were all that I ventured to take. Then a few little keepsakes, presents from relatives, were tucked into the corners, and I was off to the North station.

ASK FOR A TICKET to the nearest station to the one that I was going out to Cambridge to spend a day or two with a cousin. In that way I hoped to gain a little time in which to get away and establish myself unhindered and unnoticed in some little corner of New York.

During my journey on the train I read a novel part of the time, and between whiles drilled myself in my new role.

My name was no longer to be Frances Tansom. That fact I tried especially hard to impress on my mind. Instead I had resolved to use my middle name, together with an Anglicized version of my family name. I wanted to be able to say with truth and emphasis, if necessary, that I was using my own name. Yet was obliged to assume one entirely different in sound from that under which I had previously been known. As events proved, my choice was a wise one.

As the train drew near New York I had my first little scare. A stranger man asked and received permission to sit beside me, and then proceeded to question me.

Among other things he asked if I was familiar with the city and thought I would be able to take care of myself. At first I was sure he was a detective, but when I reflected that no one could possibly know so soon of my flight, I took courage. As he talked on even my inexperience realized what sort the man really was, and I was able in a very few words to make him understand that the best thing he could do was move immediately.

The only place of which I knew where I could feel absolutely safe was the Y. W. C. A. After I obtained the address of the Margaret Louise Home from the inquiry office at the station, I took a station cab, as it was quite dark and very cold.

Arriving at the Y. W. C. A. I made one mistake, and left a clue which I am very much surprised did not lead to my discovery. I was asked for a reference, and on the spur of the moment, I [illegible] the name of a friend of my mother's. Of course I registered under my new name, and I calculated that as Miss T.'s home was in New Hampshire, it would be a few days before she could reply to any inquiry which might be made about me. Her reply could only be that she did not know me, but I did not intend to be at the Y. W. C. A. when that should happen.

I have since learned that this lady indicated that the letter she received at the time had some bearing on my disappearance. The chance of name, however, seems to have baffled every one, though it seems strange that neither my relatives nor the police could grasp the significance of just such a move.

I went directly to bed, and in spite of my weariness, spent rather a restless night. The next morning, after an early breakfast, I spent a few minutes in the reading room, copying a few "want ads." I had no very definite plan of procedure, but intended to find employment that very day.

There had been a terrible snowstorm and the cars were nearly all blocked. I should hardly have been able to find my way about on them anyway without asking questions, and I had an idea that the more people I talked to the more chances there would be that some one would remember me well enough to aid in the search for me.

Then was particularly important, for I was an unusually tall girl, 5 feet 11 inches, a fact which might easily have led to my identification.

So always walking and never seeking assistance, except from the sign posts on the street corners, I made my way about the city.

My good fortune may have been unusual, but the fact that I have always been able to secure well-paid work among congenial people, has given me scant patience with the person who is always complaining of the scarcity of work. By noon I had secured a position and a place that I could call home for a time at least.

I then walked back to the Y. W. C. A. for my suit case, and, still walking, returned to my room. I have since estimated that I did something like ten miles that day, through pretty deep snow. My sleep that night was sound and dreamless.

I have been asked how I obtained a position without references. When I took up this position it had never occurred to me that any one would doubt my statement that I was honest, capable and in need of work. My very ignorance on the subject proved to be the very best reference I could have had. Once I had gained a foothold by that first position, I had my reference, and under my new name at that.

During the first few months I made few acquaintances and no friends. Fortunately for me the average New Yorker asks only that his neighbor leave him alone. No hermit could find better and more complete solitude than can be found in the heart of this great city. No one questioned me, and as the days went by I gradually came to feel that I had found my little place in the world where I could live and work without fear of criticism.

In the Fall of 1906 I left my first position. The doctor, under whom I had been nursing, asked me to come to his office, and while I was there he took occasion to tell me that I was convinced that I was living under an assumed name and possessed a past.

I looked him in the eye and replied:

"Dr. Blank, the name under which you know me is my own, and if you can show as clean a record of your past as I can of mine you are a most unusual man."

He never referred to the subject again, although he must have known that I was concealing something. My contention was that no one had the right to pry into what I chose to keep secret, and that was the last time that I was ever annoyed in that way.

New York took me at a very critical period of my life, sheltered me, and gave me my profession. What she did for me she will do for any other person who wishes to make a fresh start in life, provided always, that he is honestly willing to work and does not seek to prey on society. Out of experiences during my life here comes the belief that inconsistence, laziness and disregard of other people's rights are the chief reasons why so many cries of failure go up from this great city.

Now, while New York served as an excellent hiding place for me, I don't believe that a fugitive from justice would necessarily fare as well.

If a person had committed a crime and was trying to escape the law, I can imagine that a manner would [illegible] that confidence that begets confidence. There must always be a certain amount of skrinking, furtive dread, which would count against him in any work he undertook. I believe that for every honest man and woman who truly seeks work there is always some position waiting where he or she can at least expect a fair trial of ability. Given that, what more can any one ask?

Every traveling man knows that he cannot go into a restaurant in a country town without being made the subject of conversation, and if he is not directly interrogated as to his business it is a most unusual occurrence. For a stranger to put up at a country boarding house is an invitation to tell all his past record and future plans, and the man who fails to answer the questions aimed at him satisfactorily is necessarily looked upon with suspicion, and if he is trying to conceal himself he had better go elsewhere.

For this reason fugitives find in New York their safest haven. The woman, who, for any reason whatever, wants to cut away from her past associations and comes to New York, finds it a simple matter to elude those who have an interest in finding her. Taking up her abode in some quiet corner of New York, conducting herself in a manner not calculated to attract attention to her, she is as safe from detection as if she were buried under ground with the whole of New York over her. There she may remain until she is ready to raise the lid that conceals her and reveal herself.

Thousands of persons are reported as missing in the course of a year in New York. Many of them turn up in hospitals and similar institutions. Numbers of them are never heard from again.

In all probability, New York City shelters the vast majority of them, and will keep their secrets until they reveal it themselves.

I do not say that Dorothy Arnold is in New York at the present time, but I feel that she may be, and if she is she may never be discovered.

TO THE WOMAN OF STOUT FIGURE

ADJUSTO

ROYAL WORCESTER CORSET CO.
FACTORY AND EXECUTIVE OFFICES
WORCESTER, MASSACHUSETTS

Dear Madam:-

We know a secret of great importance to EVERY woman of STOUT figure. It has taken us over 51 years to learn this secret.

It is too good to keep, so we are taking this opportunity to tell you - as we have told a million others - that there is only one safe, hygienic method by which you can reduce superfluous flesh with perfect ease and comfort.

The ADJUSTO Corset is the answer!

With the aid of the wonderful little "reducing bands," the excess flesh, under their gentle persuasion, gradually disappears, and your form becomes gracefully slender in appearance. You feel and look like a new woman from the moment you first wear the ADJUSTO.

Will you not see your corsetiere about it today? The prices are $3.00 and $5.00.

Yours for perfect comfort.

ROYAL WORCESTER CORSET CO.

ADJUSTO Corsets Can Be Purchased Most Anywhere On The Globe That Corsets Are Sold.
If you cannot procure them from your dealer, we will send postpaid on receipt of style number, size and price.

Send for our Beautifully Illustrated Catalogue.

CHARLES S. NORRIS

Sole Representative for Kranich & Bach Pianos and the Autopiano

ANNUAL APRIL SALE OF

EXCHANGED PIANOS

This annual event has become notably historic.

Its real economic significance is widely known and needs no explanation to anyone acquainted with the Norris methods.

However, it is of more interest and importance this year because of the larger and better collection of pianos and the very much larger number of low price inducements offered.

But please don't misunderstand us; this is not an offer of Kranich & Bach or Autopianos at cut prices; we never sell and never have to sell either of these instruments to anyone at one cent below its regular price.

We don't want you to receive that impression, because in buying a Kranich & Bach or Autopiano a child even will get the same price that the most astute buyer does.

It is true that in the sale there are some Factory samples and returned rentals at very special prices—readily as good as new instruments—but they have been in use and it would be a deception to offer them as new.

Most of the pianos are exchanged instruments which have come from the better homes of Greater Boston.

We took them at their cash value and accepted them as a payment applied on the purchase of one of our Autopianos.

Many of the pianos would never have been parted with except for the desire of the owner to have an Autopiano, which combines all the features of the most up-to-date modern instrument.

Every piano is of reputable make—put in the best possible order by our own skilled craftsmen, fully guaranteed by us and may be exchanged within a year if for any reason you find it unsatisfactory.

For a little money you can buy a piano that will give you years of service and a rich, sweet, pure quality of music never possible in the cheap new pianos.

Returned Rentals, Factory Samples, Special Designs and Player-Pianos. All in Perfect Condition and Protected by Our Guarantee

MARY YOUNG PRAISES THE Autopiano

MARY YOUNG, GIFTED ACTRESS—HER AUTOPIANO.

MARY YOUNG (Mrs. John Craig) Says:

Chas. S. Norris, 181 Tremont St., Boston:

Gentlemen—I love my Autopiano. I wish that all my friends could have one. After a thorough investigation of the different Player Pianos I decided on an Autopiano for my home, on account of its exquisitely beautiful tone and its wonderful expression. Sincerely,

MRS. JOHN CRAIG (Mary Young), Castle Sq. Theatre.

A great many people have in their homes what is practically a "Dead piano." No one knows how to play it—son and daughter who used to play and entertain the family have married and the piano is now merely an expensive ornament. Now is the time to get an Autopiano—put in the music roll and start it—That's all you have to do.

Will play for you (without any knowledge of music or playing on your part) the world's greatest music, now and old. All opera and popular music prepared for the Autopiano as soon as published.
